

97 P.
Box II

A CATALOGUE
OF THE
PICTURES, DRAWINGS, & ETCHINGS
IN THE
BRITISH FINE ART COLLECTIONS
DEPOSITED IN THE NEW GALLERY, AT
SOUTH KENSINGTON;

BEING FOR THE MOST PART THE GIFT OF
JOHN SHEEPSHANKS, Esq.

PRINTED BY GEORGE E. EYRE AND WILLIAM SPOTTISWOODE,
PRINTERS TO THE QUEEN'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.
FOR HER MAJESTY'S STATIONERY OFFICE.
LONDON: MDCCCLIX.

Price Sixpence.

VA. 1859.0002

A CATALOGUE
OF THE
PICTURES, DRAWINGS, ETCHINGS, &c.
IN THE
BRITISH FINE ART COLLECTIONS
DEPOSITED IN THE NEW GALLERY AT SOUTH KENSINGTON.

BEING FOR THE MOST PART
THE GIFT
OF
JOHN SHEEPSHANKS, Esq.

LONDON:
PRINTED BY GEORGE E. EYRE AND WILLIAM SPOTTISWOODE,
PRINTERS TO THE QUEEN'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.
FOR HER MAJESTY'S STATIONERY OFFICE.

March 1859.

Price 6d.

THE CITY OF
WASHINGTON
DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
OFFICE OF THE SOLICITOR GENERAL
JANUARY 1859

TO THE HONORABLE
SOLICITOR GENERAL
WASHINGTON
D.C.

3800244121

~~47-10543~~

VA. 1859.0002

DEPARTMENT OF SCIENCE AND ART.

Minute.

At the Council Chamber, Whitehall, the Sixth day of February 1857.

*By the RIGHT HONOURABLE THE LORDS OF THE COMMITTEE
OF PRIVY COUNCIL appointed for the consideration of all matters relating to TRADE AND FOREIGN PLANTATIONS.*

My Lords take into consideration the Deed of Gift by which Mr. Sheepshanks transfers to the President of this Board his valuable Collection of Pictures and Drawings, in order to found a Gallery of British Art, in connection with the Schools of Art under this Board.

The President has accepted with much gratification the Trusteeship created by this Deed, under the conditions therein described.

My Lords are sensible of the great value of the magnificent gift thus presented to the nation during the lifetime of the Donor, and they desire to express their admiration of the very liberal spirit in which it has been made.

My Lords admit the reasonableness of the condition that the Deed of Gift shall only take effect when a suitable Gallery shall have been provided in an airy situation near the Gardens or Public Parks at Kensington, and they have given directions, with the consent of the Treasury, for the erection of such a Gallery without delay.

Their Lordships direct that a letter should be written to Mr. Sheepshanks, thanking him, on the part of the Government, for his munificent gift to the nation, and for the open character of the conditions under which it has been made; and stating, that whilst the liberality of these conditions has greatly enhanced its value to the nation, they are well calculated to realize the disinterested object of the Donor to found a Gallery of British Art.

LYON PLAYFAIR.

Approved,

STANLEY OF ALDERLEY,

6th Feb. 1857.

TO ALL TO WHOM THESE PRESENTS SHALL COME, I, JOHN SHEEPSHANKS of Rutland Gate, Knightsbridge, in the County of Middlesex, Esquire, send greeting.

WHEREAS I desire that a Collection of Pictures and other Works of Art, fully representing British Art, should be formed, worthy of national support, and have the advantage of undivided responsibility in its management, instead of being subject to the control of any body of trustees or managers : And whereas I conceive that such a collection should be placed in a gallery in an open and airy situation, possessing the quiet necessary to the study and enjoyment of works of Art, and free from the inconveniences and dirt of the main thoroughfares of the metropolis : And whereas I consider that such a gallery might be usefully erected at Kensington, and be attached to the Schools of Art in connexion with the Department of Science and Art now established there : And whereas, with the view to the establishment of such a collection, and in the hope that other proprietors of pictures and other works of Art may be induced to further the same object, I have determined to make such a conditional gift of the original pictures and drawings (the productions of British artists) which I possess, as herein-after expressed. And I do, therefore, hereby transfer the pictures and drawings belonging to me specified in the Schedule hereto, and the property and proprietorship thereof unto, and do declare that the same shall remain vested in the Right Honourable Edward John Stanley, Baron Stanley of Alderley, or other the member of Her Majesty's Government for the time being charged with the promotion of Art Education, now undertaken by the Department of Science and Art, as the ex-officio trustee thereof, upon the following terms and conditions, viz. :—

1. The said Right Honourable Edward John Lord Stanley, as the first and present ex-officio trustee, shall sign a memorandum of his acceptance of the trusteeship hereunder at the foot hereof.

2. A well-lighted and otherwise suitable gallery, to be called "The National Gallery of British Art," shall be at once erected by Her Majesty's Government, and be attached or near to the public buildings built or to be built for the Department of Science and Art on the estate purchased by Her Majesty's Commissioners for the Exhibition of 1851, or the public parks or gardens at Kensington.

3. The said pictures and drawings shall be deposited in such gallery with any other pictures or other works of Art that may be subsequently placed there by other contributors, as it is not my desire that my collection of pictures and drawings shall be kept apart, or bear my name as such.

4. The right of property and possession in the said pictures and drawings shall be solely in the ex-officio trustee for the time being, but subject to the conditions herein expressed; and the said pictures and drawings shall always remain under his sole care and control, and he shall be the sole arbiter of any question that may arise touching the management or disposition thereof under these Presents.

5. The said pictures and drawings shall be used (as the primary object) for reference and instruction in the Schools of Art now or hereafter placed under the superintendence of the said Department, and, subject thereto, shall be exhibited to the public at such times as shall not interfere with the arrangements of the said Schools, and under such regulations as the ex-officio trustee shall prescribe; and so soon as arrangements can be properly made by him for that purpose, the public, and especially the working classes, shall have the advantage of seeing the collection on Sunday afternoons; it being, however, understood that the exhibition of the collection on Sundays is not to be considered as one of the conditions of my gift.

6. None of the said pictures and drawings shall ever be sold or exchanged, or be dealt with contrary to the true spirit and meaning of the disposition and control thereof herein prescribed; but this condition shall not restrict the temporary loan of any of them, upon terms sanctioned by the ex-officio trustee, to any place in the United Kingdom where any School of Art exists in connexion with the Department of Science and Art, or generally where there is any safe and proper place for their reception and public exhibition.

7. The ex-officio trustee shall be advised and assisted on matters connected with the preservation of the said pictures and drawings by William Mulready, Esquire, R.A., or failing him by Richard Redgrave, Esq., R.A., or failing him by some one other R.A. of London, to be selected by the ex-officio trustee for the time being, as the professional adviser of the ex-officio trustee.

8. That the ex-officio trustee may sell the right to engrave or reproduce any of the said pictures or drawings, upon such terms as he may think proper, but the engravings and reproductions shall be approved by the artist of the picture or drawing engraved or reproduced before publication, and such artist shall be paid whatever sum may be received by the ex-officio trustee for the sale of such right.

9. The said pictures and drawings, or the conditional gift of them hereby made, shall not be subject to the provisions of the Act of the 19 & 20 Victoria, cap. 29., intituled "An Act to extend the Powers of the Trustees and Directors of the National Gallery, and to authorize the Sale of Works of Art belonging to the Public," or to any future enactment of the Legislature, which, but for this declaration to the contrary, shall have the effect of placing the said pictures and drawings under any other care or ordering than is herein prescribed, or would otherwise alter or interfere with the disposition thereof hereby made. And in case of such interference on the part of the Legislature, or if the terms and conditions as herein expressed be not strictly adhered to, then the conditional gift hereby made of the said pictures and drawings, in favour of a National Gallery of British Art, the Schools of Art, and the public generally, shall wholly cease, and the ex-officio trustee for the time being shall thereupon hold the said pictures and drawings in trust for the University of Cambridge, to be added to, and for ever thereafter form part of the Fitz-William Collection in the said University.

Witness my hand and seal, this Second day of February,
One thousand eight hundred and fifty-seven.

(Signed) JOHN SHEEPSHANKS. (L.S.)

Signed, sealed, and delivered by the above-named John Sheepshanks, in the presence of

WILLIAM COWPER,

17, Curzon Street, London.

RICHD. REDGRAVE,

18, Hyde Park Gate, South Kensington.

HENRY COLE,

24, Onslow Square.

I, the above-named and undersigned Right Honourable Edward John Stanley, Baron Stanley of Alderley, do accept the trusteeship created by the above deed.

(Signed) STANLEY OF ALDERLEY.

LYON PLAYFAIR, Witness.

BRITISH FINE ART COLLECTIONS.

INTRODUCTION,

BY

RICHARD REDGRAVE, ESQ., R.A.

T COLLECTIONS.

Oil Paintings.

MR. SHEEPSHANKS having generously presented to the nation his valuable pictures and drawings, the works of British artists, with a view to the formation of a national collection of British art, the following catalogue has been prepared, intended to serve not only as a register of the paintings, &c., but also as a means of affording the public some information on the works and their authors.

A few prefatory observations on the aim and objects of British art, and on some of its marked characteristics, may enable the public to enter into the intentions of the artists, and more fully to enjoy a noble gift which has been specially offered to contribute to the gratification of all.

In considering the aim of British art, it is natural to compare it with that of the modern Continental schools, but in doing so it is particularly necessary to bear in mind how differently the latter have been fostered and encouraged. In France, for example,—and the same observation is not less applicable to other countries,—the Church and the State are the great patrons of art, and pictures are largely commissioned for town halls, palaces, and churches. These are constantly of large dimensions, and calculated by their mere size to make an impression on those who do not reflect that all the highest qualities of art may be contained in pictures of moderate size, as is sufficiently proved in the works of Raffaello, Frate Angelico, and Hemling.

The subjects of these works are all of a public character, religious when commissioned by the Church, or historical when for the State. But Protestant Britain has never quite overcome the objections of her reformers to scriptural subjects, and our Church still denies them admission into ecclesiastical edifices. Nor, until lately, has the State in this country done anything to promote pictorial art, so that our battles and our triumphs have had no national commemoration by the painter, but have been left to the poet to sing, instead of being portrayed by the artist. Moreover, our insular position has, under Providence, protected us from actual contact with war and its terrors, and thus has had some share in the subjects of our choice. Art here has flourished from the demands of those who love it as a home delight, therefore our pictures are small, and suited to our private residences, while the subjects are such as we can live by and love; and hence, they have been largely illustrative of the feelings and affections of our kind, and of the beautiful nature of which we desire to be reminded as a solace in the moments of rest from the hard labour of daily life; and it may be said, that in no school of ancient or modern times have such subjects been more touchingly treated, more happily conceived, or more beautifully executed.

The contrast between the British and the Continental artists in their choice of subjects was singularly apparent in the vast gathering in Paris in 1855. To pass from the grand salons appropriated in the Palais des Beaux Arts to French and Continental works, into the long gallery of British pictures, was to pass at once from the midst of warfare and its incidents, from passion, strife, and bloodshed, from martyrdoms and suffering, to the peaceful scenes of home;—it was said of our pictures that they reflected the life of a people who had long been permitted to dwell safely.

The subjects chosen by British painters have been disparagingly classed with those of the Dutch school, but they are of a far higher character, and appeal to more educated and intellectual minds. Thus, if we examine the works of Teniers, Terberg, Ostade, Jan-Steen, De Hooghe, Dow, Mieris, and others of that school, they will be found to consist of music-meetings, tavern-scenes, conversations, feasts, games, revels, and drinking-bouts; often very doubtful in their subject, and frequently of the very lowest taste and character. They seem to be the productions of men who never read, since the subjects chosen rarely or ever have any connexion with the literature, or have been derived from the poets or writers, of their own or any other country; but represent, certainly with admirable truth and force, the scenes they daily saw, and among which they daily lived, embodying generally only the lowest sentiments and instincts of our common nature.

The subjects of British artists, on the contrary, if they are below what is usually classed as historic art, almost always appeal to the higher sentiments, and embody the deep feelings and affections of mankind. Our poets and writers, as well as those of other countries, find in them loving illustrators. Even when the painter chooses for his subject our rough sports, our native games, our feasts and merry-makings, he contrives so that some touching incident, some tender episode, or some sweet expression, shall be introduced to link them to our higher humanity; and those offensive accompaniments which the Dutch artist seemed instinctively to revel in are judiciously passed over, or hinted at rather than prominently displayed.

Landscape painting also is a class of art which has been very successfully cultivated in this country, and British artists have been allowed greatly to excel in it. The present collection contains fine works by Constable, Turner, Collins, and Callcott, among those passed away, and many by eminent living painters. Unlike the Continental practice, our artists, both subject and landscape painters, mostly study art for themselves, and prefer nature to the painting-rooms of their eminent contemporaries. This habit has led not only to truth, but to variety and individuality, which are among the greatest charms of British landscape painting. Great is the difference between Collins and Constable, although both paint English nature as it is presented to the view of all who love to look on it and learn to see it, and both prefer the fresh breezy sparkle of our own downs and commons, of our green woods and fields or shingly shores, to any other, as the subjects for their pictures. Still greater is the difference between these and Turner, the true painter of mist and cloud, of air and distance,—who, not content to restrict himself to our own scenery, delights in that of brighter lands also; and depicts nature with all that an imaginative mind could gather through the most informed and gifted eye.

The dews and mists of our land have been a boon to our island painters, sometimes shrouding the earth and rendering it vast and grand by dim uncertainty, sometimes glittering in the rosy gleams of morning, or lighted by the golden tints of evening.

Every way, these accidental effects have been seized upon as a source of infinite variety and beauty; they contribute to the verdure and fertility of the land, to the—“Long fields of barley and of rye

That clothe the wold and meet the sky,”

as well as to the abundant weedage of our heaths and hedgerows, both fertile sources of the true picturesque, and both studied with intense love by the true artist.

From what has been said, it will be felt far from surprising that historical art has been little practised in these kingdoms, since there has been no demand for it by private patrons, nor by our corporate bodies, our churches, or for our state buildings; yet the artists have never been backward, and individuals have from time to time sacrificed their worldly interests to do away what has been made a reproach to us. We may instance noble historical works by men who were our contemporaries, by Haydon, Hilton, and Etty, as well as by living artists, works which may well take rank with what has been achieved by modern Continental painters; and when Government at last came forward to promote historic art, in the decoration of our Halls of Legislature, an immediate response was given that has resulted, and will result, in works which posterity may perhaps place higher than contemporary judgment.

The present collection, however, consists of pictures of cabinet proportions, illustrative of every-day life and manners amongst us, appealing to every man's observation of nature and to our best feelings and affections, without rising to what is known as historic art; as such, they are works that all can understand and all more or less appreciate. And this is especially to be insisted on, since a wrong impression is only too widely entertained that art does not appeal to the multitude but only to those specially educated to appreciate it. Pictorial art does appeal directly to all in some of its highest qualities, inasmuch as it embodies images of beauty and expression, since both of these are parts of a language which nature has made common to all mankind who are imbued with a sense of the beautiful, and an instinctive feeling enabling them to read the heart in the varied expression of the face or action, and therefore enabling them to enter into the painter's labours, if he have truly rendered nature.

Thus far, then, all can judge of the painter's art,—all can tell if he fills them with pleasure from a sight of the beautiful, or touches their hearts in sympathy with the expression he has pour-trayed. Not that it is asserted that all feel these qualities in their full force, or can be moved equally by his art. We are created with senses capable of culture, and as the Indian becomes acute of hearing and keen of vision by constant exercise of these bodily senses, so those which are intellectual may be cultured and improved: and this constitutes the high mission of the artist, and that which renders him a public benefactor—that his art stimulates mental culture. Nor does this culture contradict the first assertion, that art appeals directly to the multitude; there may be a difference in degree, there is none in kind, and as far as beauty and expression go, the painter appeals to all, knowing that in these respects “the whole earth” is still “of one language and one speech.”

Nor are the untaught multitude shut out from the enjoyment of a still higher quality of the painter’s art—the imaginative. Unlike the poet, who clothes his noblest images in words, which to the many never reveal things, of the painter it may be more truly said that through his art—

“We can behold
Things manifold,
That have not yet been wholly told,
Have not been wholly sung or said.”

and not alone all that is probable, but all that is possible, becomes actual, embodied by the painter’s skill on canvass.

Now, if we would simply allow these three qualities in a picture to act upon our minds, how much of the painter’s art would become a source of delight, shut up only when we attempt to be learned in qualities which we have not studied, and critical where passive enjoyment would bring the truest pleasure.

Let us look at any picture in the present Collection appealing distinctly to the qualities spoken of, and, simply endeavouring to enter into the painter’s intentions, forget a while to be critical, and be content for once to be amused.

There is no work in the Collection more fully illustrating the pleasure which all will derive from pictorial beauty than the Perdita and Florizel of Leslie (No. 114). It is impossible to suppose that one quite unacquainted with the play would be otherwise than deeply interested by the surpassingly sweet face and the modest purity of Perdita, or the more manly form and princely grace of him to whom she gives the flower; and all can understand the deep devouring love with which he gazes on her. Far higher, no doubt, will be the pleasure of the spectator, who, although equally untaught in the rules of art, has read the poetical play from which the subject is taken. He will at once enter fully into the painter's beautiful embodiment of her whose princely lineage shone through her shepherd rearing, and agree with Florizel to think her—

... "No shepherdess but Flora
Peering on April's front."

The depth of love which the painter's skill reveals to the unread spectator will be far stronger in its appeal to him who has read the inimitable lines the poet has put into the mouth of Florizel:—

"What you do

Still betters what is done. When you speak, sweet,
I'd have you do it ever: when you sing,
I'd have you buy and sell so; so give alms;
Pray so; and for the ordering of your affairs,
To sing them too: when you do dance, I wish you
A wave o' the sea, that you might ever do
Nothing but that; move still, still so, and own
No other function: each your doing,
So singular in each particular,
Crowns what you are doing in the present deeds,
That all your acts are queens."

The enjoyment of the intelligent observer will not end here. He will be led to remark how the painter has enhanced the loveliness of Perdita, by contrasting it with the homely comeliness of Mopsa, and given her actions additional grace by the truthful clumsiness of the country maiden; nor has the same artifice been neglected to add youth and beauty to the prince as compared with the aged father and his councillor. Many more sources of pleasure might be pointed out; but they refer to other qualities. These we may defer to the consideration of expression as a source of pleasure to all, and illustrate it by Mulready's picture of "Giving a Bite," No. 140. The subject-matter of the picture is very slight; but the story told is perfect in its kind—two boys, the one giving to the other a bite from an apple. The boy who is giving the bite is one of those whose look shows that his gift is a compulsory one. He is evidently a poor-spirited creature who dares not resist the demand "give us a bite;" but he yields it unwillingly, as his face and whole action fully express. Instead of proffering the apple freely, he shrinks, and drawing back his elbows, brings the fruit in the closest proximity to himself; he pinches it with his fingers, and covers it up to limit the bite to the smallest possible surface; while the bully who enforces it expresses in countenance and hands the eager and intense greediness of his nature; the hands are instinct with expressive action; he seems pouncing on his prey. At the lower part of the picture, the monkey of a poor Italian stroller eyes, with a face of the same expressive fear, a large dog, equally dreading a greedy bite. A child in a little girl's arms is also most thoroughly expressive of sleep. Into the expression thus portrayed all can enter—the uninstructed in art as well as he who has made art his study; the former, indeed, from being entirely free to rest upon the story, is likely to enjoy it even more fully than the latter, whose thoughts are taken up with other qualities of art into which the unlearned do not strive to enter.

The present Collection is not rich in purely imaginative works, that is to say, works representing ideal beings or states of being, such as are the fairy scenes of Maclise or Paton, the scripture visions of Danby, or the mythological and poetical landscapes of Turner. Many works, however, and, among them, all those embodying subjects from our poets and other writers, are necessarily works of imagination, although they may be so fully realized by the painter's art, that we forget the invention in the completeness of the realization.

The Dinner at Page's House, by Leslie (No. 110), for instance, makes us, as it were, personally acquainted with the imaginary individuals of the poet's drama, with Slender and Anne Page, with Falstaff and Bardolph, as well as with the two merry wives; so much so, indeed, that we accept them as real persons, and overlook that the whole is a pure invention, first of the poet's—who makes us know the characters by their deeds and speech—and then of the painter who, entering fully into the poet's mind, enables us to see what the latter had but partially revealed. Thus, when the painter is a thorough master of his art, he helps to open up the poet to the many; and "Sweet Anne Page," probably a mere abstraction, when read of, becomes henceforth a living reality, that may, perchance, never more be separated from the language of the poet.

This realization by the painter, the multitude are thoroughly able to enter into and appreciate. It has been found by experience that men apprehend more easily by the eye than by the ear, that pictures to them are greater realities than words; and, certainly, he that has in ignorance of the play, looked with pleasure on such a work as the above admiring it merely as the representation of a feast in the olden time, and drawing the characters of the guests only, from the expression portrayed will be interested more deeply still when he reads the play, and sees the skill with which the painter has revealed to him the conception of another. Thus the inventions of the painter are not only a source of pleasure in themselves, but open out other sources of gratification also.

In some cases the invention of the artist is exerted rather to exercise and call forth the imagination of the spectator himself than to display his own. "Suspense," by Landseer, is an excellent example of the pictures of this class. A noble bloodhound is watching at a closed door, shut out, one may imagine, from the wounded knight his master. There are the steel gloves removed from the now powerless limbs—the torn eagle-plume speaks of the deadly strife—and the continuous track upon the floor shews how his life-blood flowed away drop by drop as he was borne within. Who does not watch with the faithful hound in deep "suspense" for some token that he yet lives? Others, again, may read the picture far differently; they may imagine that the dog has tracked the author of some act of violence or deed of blood; the plume torn from his casque by the struggling victim, lies on the floor sprinkled with the blood shed in the struggle ere the victim was borne within the now closed portal; we recognize the scuffle of the moment, the hand clenching the door-post with fearful energy to prevent the closing, the stifled cries, the hopelessness of resistance. Yet there, like a watchful sentry, waiting in silence, the animal crouches, whose deep instincts teach him untiringly to follow the object of his search; the spectator himself waits in anxious eagerness for the re-opening door, anticipates the spring of the animal and the renewed struggle that will ensue. Thus variously may the picture be read, each painting for himself a far different scene; but few, looking on the painter's work, will stay entirely without the door, nor allow imagination to carry them away beyond the narrow canvass actually bounding the artist's labours.

Enough has been said to show the manner in which pictorial art speaks to all, and is intelligible to all, and how greatly the spectator's pleasure may be enlarged if he will examine in a true spirit. Some further remarks, however, may be useful to illustrate other qualities of pictorial art; remarks tending also to a just appreciation of the artist's labours. Among these, one of the first to be considered is imitation.

Painting is classed as one of the imitative arts, and there can be no question that much of the pleasure we derive from pictures arises from the imitative representation of objects.

Take the lowest class of works, pictures of still life. In these we shall at once allow, that while grouping, light and shade, and colour conduce to the pleasurable sensations they afford us, the imitative truth with which objects solid and in relief are represented on a flat surface, with all their varied qualities of colour, texture, transparency, &c., is the great source of our pleasure in them.

As subjects take a higher aim, and rely more largely on beauty, expression, or feeling, mere imitation becomes more and more secondary to those nobler qualities; and in works appealing directly to the imagination, it is surprising how small an amount of imitation is consistent with our deriving the fullest gratification from them. Thus the naked females of Vanderwerf are both well drawn and coloured, and evidently far more imitative than an outline by Flaxman; but the touching groups of the Hesiod would lose in their effect upon us, coloured by even a greater hand than the Dutch painter.

The question of the relative imitation of nature has been so much discussed of late, and photography and the camera are giving us such insight into its multitudinous details that many are apt to take a wrong view of imitation altogether, and to give it a higher rank than it deserves among the qualities of pictorial art. And first, those take a wrong view of imitation who pay attention to the imitation of details to the neglect of the general truth; they give an undue importance to the parts, and overlook their subordination to the whole. That painter has the truest feeling for his art who endeavours to comprehend his subject and express it fully as a whole first; and having done so adds as much completion to the various details as they will admit of without interfering with the general truth; not commencing with the mere imitation of details, trusting to their culmination in a finished whole. The landscape painter, for instance, who glories in being able to count the leaves of the trees in his picture or the blades of grass in his foreground—though he may be praised for his patience, has but a mean idea of bountiful nature, and will never arrive at the truth expressed in the pictures of Turner or Constable, since these make the spectator truly feel her endless infinity and fulness.

Again, in historic art, it is the thorough impression of the action or passion to be represented, the full realization of the incident chosen, that is to be the endeavour of the painter, through the expressive action of the figures—the expression of character shown by the heads and hands; and if we are to be carried away from the contemplation of these high qualities to admire the truthful imitation of the stones of a wall or the bark of a tree in the background, the painter mars his own work, and the impression produced upon the mind is much lowered by the impertinent intrusion of unimportant truths. Even in art having a lower aim, those who examine pictures carefully will soon distinguish two modes of imitation—the one aiming at the representation of natural objects by the servile imitation of details,—attempting, as it were, to give the very threads of the various stuffs, or the individual hairs of the head; the other wherein the artist imitates rather the general texture of the drapery, the masses of the hair, or the qualities of the surface, in keeping with their local position in the picture. Of this latter and juster imitation, the picture of the “Wedding Gown,” by Mulready (No. 145), will afford many illustrations; as, for instance, the end of the counter on which the silk-mercator unfolds his goods. This cannot be looked at without our at once seeing that the painter intends to represent, not real mahogany, but a mere grainer’s imitation of it, or the stool on which the purchases rest made gay by being covered with red paper. And yet this wonderful truth of external imitation is achieved without any undue or minute labour, but merely by a careful consideration of the general effect of such surfaces. Again, these, although they delight us when we specially turn to their examination, by no means obtrude on the attention which the skill of the painter has managed to concentrate fully on the actors themselves.

The pictures of Landseer also are examples of faithful imitation, arising from attention to general truth rather than to minute details; but this has reference to another quality of art, technically called execution, differing extremely in the works of different painters, and which deserves a share of attention.

In addition to the pleasure derivable from the higher qualities of art—imagination, beauty, and expression, and also from imitation and colour, there is no doubt that the mere mode and manner of painting, or as it is technically called “execution,” may be classed among the pleasure-giving qualities of a picture.

For while there is a national or general character in the execution of the several schools, the manner of handling of each individual painter is as varied as the hand-writing of different individuals, to which indeed it is analogous.

This individuality of manner is often strikingly contrasted in painters of the same school, even when related to each other as master and scholar. What, for instance, can more radically differ than the execution of Rembrandt and his pupil Dow—the full impasto of Rembrandt's lights—the deep unction of his shadows—the bold vigour and skilful ease of his pencil; compared with the meagre minuteness, the petty prettiness, and feeble labouredness of Dow. Some painters, like Ostade, by repeated glazings, arrive at the jewelled richness of painted glass. Others, as Teniers, appear to accomplish all by a marvellous oneness. Some have a heavy hand; some a light one; while a few, by a happy facility, give the effect of labour and completeness without any sense of its wearisome continuousness.

British artists have always paid great attention to execution and have engrafted on their practice all the various excellences to be found in the old masters. In this they widely differ from the modern Continental schools, in which, until lately, but little attention was paid to variety of handling and to the different qualities of thick and thin painting—scumbling and glazing—opaque and transparent painting;—qualities which have special charms over the solid heaviness of those schools.

The varied modes of execution, and the pleasure derivable from them, will be best understood by again referring to examples. Thus, that happy facility which has already been alluded to is fully illustrated in the works of Sir E. Landseer. Examine carefully the "Fire-side Party" No. 90: here the hairy texture of the veritable race of Pepper and Mustard is given as it were hair by hair, yet it is achieved at once by a dexterous use of the painter's brush. Or turn from this work to the "Tethered Ram," where the fullest truth of woolly texture is obtained by simply applying with a full brush the more solid pigment into that which has already been laid on as a ground with a large admixture of the painter's vehicle: days might be spent endeavouring to arrive at a result which the painter has achieved at once. The early works of this painter are a complete study for light-handed and beautiful execution; they look imitatively perfect, yet many instances are known of his extreme rapidity of execution. In the collection of the late Mr. Wells, of Redleaf, among many other works by this artist are two peculiarly illustrating this quality: one, is a spaniel rushing out on a wounded bird, the bird and dog, are the size of life, they have the fullest appearance of completeness, yet the picture was painted in two hours and a half; the other picture is a fallow deer the size of life, painted down to the knees, and of which Mr. Wells used to relate that on leaving the house to go to Penshurst Church the canvas was being strained by his butler, and on his return, in about three hours, the picture was complete as it is now seen on the walls, so complete indeed that is more than doubtful if equal truth of imitation could have resulted from a more laboured execution, or that the Vicar's remark would apply to it, that "the picture might have been better had the painter taken more pains."

To study a painter's progress in executive skill is also a source of much interest and pleasure and easily attained by all who will seek to enjoy it. Let the visitor, for example, examine Mulready's picture of the "Fight interrupted," No. 139, which he will perceive by the date on the pump was painted in 1816, and then pass to his picture of the "Wedding Gown," No. 145, painted nearly thirty years later, in 1844, and compare the two merely as to modes of painting, that is to say, the use of the brush and the application of the pigments. The most unpractised eye will see that the earlier work is painted without much variety in a broad simple manner, the touch is flat and decisive with a degree of sameness, and the painting rather solid throughout, glazing having been little resorted to. If he now turn to the "Wedding Gown," he cannot but observe the wondrous richness and lustre which arises from the varied methods of execution adopted, some of the colours are as brilliant as precious stones from being laid pure and transparent over a white ground, some have a deep and intense richness from a semi-solid pigment having been used in a like manner. The lustre of the bride's dress is owing to the amber hue having been produced by glazing, while the brilliant red of the wood is the effect of a pure pigment on a luminous ground. In the dress of the errand boy a marvellous texture has been obtained by elaborate stippling with broken tints, while on the other hand the effect of hair has been given as dexterously as in the happiest of Landseer's works, in the little sleeping dog on the floor. It is true that all that has been described will not at once be understood, and the means by which it is arrived at appreciated, but blind indeed must be the observer who does not see the wondrous handycraft that has been achieved by thirty years of patient study, achieved, moreover at the same time, with the perfection of those higher qualities of feeling and invention which are more especially the birthright of genius.

These preliminary remarks on the oil paintings will, it is hoped, enable visitors to examine with some degree of method and, it is hoped, with increased interest the various works in the collection. The several qualities of beauty, expression, and feeling have been discussed and shewn to appeal more or less to all alike, while other qualities of the painter's art, such as those of imitation and execution, have been shortly explained in order to invite attention to them. There are yet others which might have been entered upon, such as colour, composition, &c. ; but as these would have required a lengthened consideration, they are left to the study and observation of those whose love of art leads them to endeavour to enter thoroughly into those qualities which contribute to its true excellence.

Before concluding these remarks on the oil pictures, it may be proper to notice those few among them which show evident signs of dilapidation and decay, since such may lead to the false inference that British pictures are not painted in a manner to insure that permanency that was attained by the old Masters in their works.

It has been supposed that the vehicle or medium used by our painters is an unsafe one, and that this is the cause of the changes that are taking place; but this is not the case (see p. 59). It is now well known that most of the mischief to our pictures has resulted from the use of bituminous pigments, such as mummy, asphaltum, &c., and which is now entirely discontinued.

These pitchy pigments, from their very nature, never harden, but retain a tendency to fluidity from heat, and to contract and expand under alternations of temperature; unlike the metallic and earthy pigments, which, mingled with the oils and resins of the painter's vehicle, become harder and drier by age and exposure. Unfortunately, these bituminous pigments were very tempting to the painter, forming the coolest and most transparent browns; and hence, from the time of Sir Joshua Reynolds until within the last twenty years, they were much used for the luminous shadows, and even in the solid lights, by many painters. Pictures so painted often remain apparently sound, and little outward change is visible until it becomes necessary to varnish them, when the soft bituminous layer yields to the strong contraction of the varnish, and a fearful disruption takes place. This result was seen in the "Portia and Bassanio" of Newton, No. 166, and in the "Duncan Gray," by Wilkie, No. 226. (Vide pp. 66, 80.)

In all cases, the evils arising from the use of asphaltum were greatly increased when the successive paintings were too hastily applied ere the previous one had had time to dry. Wilkie is known to have so used it on the "Duncan Gray." The picture was nearly completed in a solid manner of execution, and silvery tone, when he became enamoured of the rich, juicy manner of Ostade, and sought rapidly to change the appearance of his work by successive paintings into asphaltum, each succeeding colour being applied as rapidly as the under one would film over; and hence, the much to be regretted dilapidation of the picture. As he was pleased with the expression of the principal female head, he forbore to touch it; and this and some few other parts remain quite uninjured, while the hands of the father, much of the figure of "Duncan Gray," and almost all the background were, probably, enriched greatly for a short time, but seriously injured for futurity by these re-paintings.

One of the landscapes by Mulready, No. 135, is also somewhat cracked from the use of asphaltum; but the companion picture, painted shortly afterwards, is in the soundest state; and as he entirely gave up the use of this dangerous pigment, all the other works are in beautiful preservation, and with every prospect of being as durable as the best pictures of the Flemish and Dutch schools. Moreover, bituminous colours have of late years been entirely shunned by all our best artists.

The works of Turner have failed from different and more complicated causes: sometimes from the intervention of water-colours between two layers of oil colour, when the upper one is sure to separate. More frequently, perhaps, from the practice of working hastily on his pictures, with various media, on the "varnishing days," producing by scumblings and thin paintings, effects as beautiful as they were evanescent.* Imperfectly united to the prior paintings, these change by time or have in some cases been partially removed by the picture-cleaner, and the work left in a state from which it is hopeless to advance or to recede.

That the vehicle used has little to do with the failure of particular pictures is shown by the thoroughly sound state of works painted with totally different mediums. Those by Leslie, for instance, which are painted with a mastic magilp; those of Mulready, painted with copal varnish; those of Landseer, which show neither crack nor flaw, though painted with mastic magilp; those of Webster, of Stanfield, and others; in fact, in all cases where there has been a restrained use of the medium, and wherein the use of bitumen or asphaltum has been abstained from, the pictures are in a perfectly sound state, and have every appearance of durability.

* He would frequently go round to his brother painters and seize upon any colour on their palettes which gave him pleasure; and irrespective of the medium with which it had been tempered, remove it to his own, and transfer some of it to the picture he was at that time working on.

In view, however, of the changes which time produces, more or less, in all pigments and vehicles, it would be extremely valuable, in the future interests of art, if painters would habitually affix to their pictures some memorandum of the mode in which they were executed, of the nature of the ground, and of the principal pigments, and, more especially, of the vehicle they employed. These would form reliable data for future artists, as each picture would register the results of a series of experiments, determining the durability of different modes of painting; the permanency of glazings, of scumblings, of thick or thin painting, of solidity or transparency, as well as of the materials used. One moment's reflection on the value we should attach to such facts connected with works of Van Eyck, of Rubens, of Bellini, or Titian, would be a sufficient argument to induce the general adoption of the practice.

Drawings and Sketches.

A small collection of drawings and sketches forms part of Mr. Sheepshanks' munificent gift. These are both interesting and instructive, since they shew the process of thought by which artists work out their pictures. Among them will be found pen-and-ink and pencil jottings of first ideas, first lines of composition, blots of light and shade and colour, sketches of varied positions of heads, hands, and feet, tending to the fuller expression or more complete illustration of the subject of pictures; studies for backgrounds; and careful drawings of whole figures, drapery, and heads and hands, made either for study or to be used in the progress of the work itself.

Occasionally these sketches and drawings have reference to pictures in the Collection. But in these instances they most probably comprise only a small number of the studies actually produced in the completion of the picture. They will, however, be regarded with peculiar interest, as giving insight into the growth of ideas, and the working of the mind of the artist. From this cause the casual scrap, and the veriest blot by a master hand, may be invaluable, as containing perchance, the germ of some idea afterwards expanded into a noble and immortal work.

This is exemplified by the pencil scrap No. 120, since in it Wilkie has noted down his first idea of some accidental group on which the picture of "Duncan Gray" was founded. In No. 121, the new-born thought has somewhat grown, and its light and shade become more marked, while missing, doubtless, many fragments, not at present in the Collection, we find (in Nos. 122 and 123) examples of those careful studies of the expression of hands which were made in his progress to the perfect work.

It is worthy of notice here, that Wilkie laid great stress on the hands in his compositions. He used to say that the interest and expression of the story was as much helped on by two hands as by one face. Hence he never hid a hand if he could avoid it; and the many varied studies made by him, as well as those by Mulready and other artists, will shew how thoroughly the same truth is appreciated by all those who have excelled most in the conduct of the story in their works.

In view of the interest which thus attaches to such studies, it is to be hoped that opportunities may hereafter occur of still further increasing in this direction the value of Mr. Sheepshanks' gift, by obtaining, as far as possible, all the sketches and drawings for at least a few of the principal pictures comprised in this national collection.

Another value belongs to some of these drawings as illustrating the advance of the individual from the student into the artist, and exhibiting the increased power and facility that arise from knowledge. Accordingly, the dates on the various works are sometimes of marked importance. This source of interest may be exemplified by a small number of very early drawings by E. Landseer, Nos. 48 to 56; some of them, the productions of his mere childhood, yet showing even at the age of five years, the bent of his mind to that branch of art which his after career has so fully illustrated.

The careful drawings of figures, heads, hands, and draperies which form part of the collection—while they will serve to remove entirely the imputation that British artists are indifferent draughtsmen,—will show the student-artist the pains and labour by which their predecessors have achieved their reputation, and the public,—ever unwilling to admit that genius is other than a happy inspiration, accomplishing all its works without study or toil—will see that even those who must be acknowledged to possess it in the fullest sense, have yet shewn that labour is the price which must ever be paid for excellence.

It is to be confessed, however, that the practice of artists as regards sketches and studies is very varied,—and that while some, like Wilkie, Mulready, Cope, &c., make many sketches before commencing, and studies during the progress of their pictures, others deem such a mode of proceeding objectionable, as exhausting their interest in their work and deadening the freshness of the first thought. Some even go so far as to think out their works wholly on the canvas. These, however, are the few, and the contrary has in all ages been the practice of the greatest and most original minds. Nor do we find that it has conduced to tameness and insipidity,—but rather to the refining and perfecting the first and vigorous idea.

It is, however, to be remembered that the conduct of the picture by previous studies and drawings was a necessity with many of the old masters, and hence, perhaps, in some degree the prevalence of the practice, since at least all those who worked in fresco were obliged to prepare studies and a complete cartoon of the whole arrangement of the work before proceeding to paint it on the wall. This cartoon was traced, or pricked and pounced on to the prepared ground, and the several parts, as the painter proceeded with the picture, being cut out from the cartoon, formed the studies from which the work was, piece by piece, rapidly executed. Fresco painting has only of late years been introduced into this country, and the commissions for such works confined to a few. The head (No. 166) by Dyce, cut for the purpose described above, from the cartoon of a fresco of “Neptune giving Britannia the Empire of the Sea,” painted at Osborne for Her Majesty, forms a good specimen of the practice, while the studies of drapery (Nos. 175 to 179) by Herbert, are such as are made in the preparation of the cartoon, in this instance one of those in the vestibule of the House of Lords, the “Lear and Cordelia.”

As another instance of the production of artists' sketches, and as illustrating the facility of invention and execution obtained through practice, the two drawings by Leslie (Nos. 58 and 59) may deserve a passing remark. These works were produced at meetings of the Sketching Society. This society, which existed for many years (and has brought into existence a multitude of sketches), consisted of a small number of artists who met by turns at each other's houses. The host of the evening provided the necessary drawing materials, and when the party were ready to commence sketching, and not until then, proposed the subject for the evening, to be treated by each according to his own fancy. They began their sketches at seven o'clock, and at ten these were gathered in completed, and the members, while partaking of a simple supper, freely criticized each other's labours. On breaking up for the evening the whole of their works were left for their entertainer. As the Society consisted both of landscape and figure painters, and sometimes invited a sculptor friend to join them, the treatments of the same subject (sometimes a single word) were very varied.

On one occasion, it is said that the Queen, wishing to test that the sketches were actually invented and executed impromptu, desired to give the subject for the evening. It was selected by Her Majesty, and sent by a messenger when the party were actually assembled. When the given time had elapsed, the same messenger carried the whole of the sketches to the Palace for inspection. The subject given was the word "Desire," and many of the sketches made on that occasion are said to have been of peculiar excellence and fancy.

Water-colour Paintings.

Some few sketches in water colours, together with one or two works of a far higher character than sketches, are included in the gift of Mr. Sheepshanks. Water-colour painting is an art entirely of British origin, and acknowledged as such by all the continental schools; its commencement also, and the present perfection to which it has been brought, date almost within the century. It would seem its birthright, therefore, to be properly represented in our national collections, in order to preserve the honour due to its originators. The history of the art is now well known, and works of its founders are easily attainable; added to which, the generous gift by Turner (himself almost its originator) has endowed the nation with a series of invaluable pictures and sketches, forming in themselves a collection, and to which it is surely necessary to add the works of some of those who have laboured with him for the advancement of an art both beautiful in itself, and reflecting honour on the people among whom it has been produced.

Such a collection should contain paintings by Hearne, Rooker, Cosens, and Paul Sandby, in order to show what the art was in their hands, as well as by Girtin, Robson, Varley, De Wint, Fielding, Prout, and others, to show its rapid growth, and the brilliancy which resulted from the new method that they introduced. It is to be hoped that such a collection, truly national and British, will arise out of the united gifts of Mr. Turner and Mr. Sheepshanks. The nation is thus far deeply indebted to the generosity of individuals for its examples of British art, through the gifts of Mr. Vernon, Mr. Turner, and Mr. Sheepshanks; and as but a small annual outlay would now produce a thorough historical series of the British school of water-colour painting, it is hardly possible to suppose that such an outlay will be withheld when so worthy and legitimate, and at the same time so truly national an object is to be attained.

Etchings.

The collection comprises a number of impressions from etchings by Wilkie and others, in various states of the plates,—a series deserving careful inspection; they have been removed from among the drawings, and will be found arranged with the engravings.

It should be understood, that what are called painter's etchings are works of quite a different character from engravings, as well as from the etchings produced to facilitate the engraver's labours. These latter are often wholly mechanical, the surface of the drawing or painting to be engraved is reduced carefully by squares, and the only part of the process that allows of any licence in operation is the more or less of detail gone into, or the deeper or fainter "biting in" of the lines with the aquafortis. Not so with painter's etchings: these are truly works of art on copper; thoughts gradually felt out and improved at the will and according to the feeling and taste of the painter, who, quite unrestrained and free, alters the composition, heightens the expression, improves the light, shade, and form, as freely as he would if working with the brush or the crayon. The changes that take place in the process are well exemplified in the etching of the two women at a cottage door, No. 351 to 356.

There are six different states of the plate of this etching. No. 351 is a feeble first biting of the copper, with, as yet, little feeling of colour, and incomplete pictorial arrangement. In No. 352 an attempt has been made to force the light and shade, and to give some colour to the whole; alterations are commenced, the petticoat of the female is changed into a quilted one, and a broad shadow thrown on the wall behind the woman with the child in her arms, while the fish hanging on the wall, and the cloth on the line, have been rendered points in the composition. The face of the woman standing in the doorway is a curious study of what appears at first misapplied labour; in No. 356, however, all the same lines are present, but they have been brought into due subordination to the general effects. No. 353 differs but little from No. 352, except that the light is concentrated downwards by the dark over the door, and by a half-tint on the wall on the left. This half-tint seems to have been first tried on the right hand of the door where vestiges of it remain partially cleared away. In No. 354 a great change has been made in the composition; a large mass of vine foliage has been etched in on the left—the scheme of the composition, both as to form, light and dark, and colour, has been entirely determined; we see it gradually heightened and carried out in No. 355, and perfected by dry-point, bur, and tinting in No. 356, wherein the parts are rounded, the character of the faces fully expressed and the secondary lights subdued—as that on the wall, the lid of the barrel, the foreground, and the dog—making them entirely subordinate to the principal light on the child and the woman that carries it, as well as to that on the close cap of the female at the door. This etching, on the first impression, is signed D. Wilkie, 1815, the completed proof is marked D.W., 1820. The numerous objects introduced are examples of Wilkie's observation of nature, the dried fish, the curb-bit, the tally inside the door, the chimney corbelled from the wall, the scraper, brushes, spades, flower-pot, &c., all illustrate his attention to details. This was such a habit with him that when about to paint a picture of the Execution of Lady Jane Grey, he went with one of his pupils to the Tower to look at the spot where it was said to have taken place, and was shewn a piece of open ground, flanked by a high wall. Nothing was to be seen on this wall, except that high up there was a large rusty nail or spike. "Take out your book and make a sketch of it, man," said he to his pupil. "Who knows but it may have been the place where some traitor's head was fixed?" At any rate this sense of locality is of great value to the painter, however extreme this instance of it may appear.

The dog introduced in this plate affords a curious instance of Wilkie's repetition of an idea,—it is scratching its ear,—the same incident will be seen in the etching of the Lost Receipt (No. 357 and 358), and was again used in the picture of the First Earring, in the Vernon Gallery.

The process of etching on copper or steel plates is as follows:—The plate (say of copper) being made perfectly flat and polished, so as to remove the slightest scratches, is gently heated and covered very thinly and evenly with a preparation of wax, &c., called “etching ground,” and this, before it is quite cool, is smoked over the flame of a candle. The artist then, with a sharp-pointed tool, called an etching needle, draws the subject through the wax ground down to the copper, putting in the lines that form the shadows, &c., so as to complete it as far as possible. In this state, the parts not covered with etching ground being previously protected, it is immersed in or covered with diluted nitrous acid; the artist exercises his judgment as to the time the acid should remain on the plate, so as to eat away the lines where the ground has been removed by the etching point. The acid from time to time is removed from the surface, and the parts requiring to be more faint or delicate, stopped out with some waxen preparation, and then the rest is again and again bitten deeper and stopped out until the whole is thought to be sufficiently deep to print to the required strength. The acid is now poured off, and the remaining etching ground removed with turpentine; the plate will now be found covered with fainter and darker incised lines. On to the plate, in this state, printers’ ink is firmly dabbed with a stuffed leathern dabber, and the surface then is carefully wiped, and even cleansed with whitening, and in this state, damped paper being placed over the plate, it is passed through a rolling press, when the ink left in the incised lines is transferred from the copper to the paper; by these means, the process being repeated in each case, many successive impressions may be taken. The etchings 372 and 373, 377 and 378, are impressions from plates in this condition, as is also 351 and 365.

But the artist may wish to carry the plate further by adding other details, as in 354, or enriching the colour, as in 367 or 368. In this latter instance, he reverts to another process, called “dry-pointing.” The same needle is used, but it is to make scratches in the copper, which then are not intended to be bitten in, but to print, as the slightest scratch will, without deepening by acid. No. 359 is an instance of such dry-pointing, where all that is added to No. 357 has been by the dry-point. When the dry point has been used, a tool called a scraper is passed over the line to remove the burr, which is turned up on one side of the line as the plough turns up the clod along the furrow. This burr makes a blurred and blotted line when not removed, quite distinct from the sharp line bitten by nitric acid.

Sometimes, however, the artist desires to keep the rich velvet-like black which results from the printing with the burr left; thus in 367 the forms of the clouds are produced by the dry-point, and the burr is partially removed in the upper part, and partially remains below, forming rich dark tones. On the sky, the trees on the left have again been etched in No. 368 with the dry point, and the burr left to give richness.

This richness is also increased by "printing with a tint;" that is to say, the surface of the plate is only partly cleansed, no whitening being used; this gives what may be called a dirty impression, but it is dirt under the control of the artist, and much of the beauty of the impressions No. 360 and 368 arises from this treatment. Again, tone and richness are increased by printing on dark India paper—see the difference between 354 and 356—which is a thin paper first put over the plate, and then above it a thicker paper, to which it is made to adhere by the pressure of the printing.

Thus it will be seen that in the hands of the true artist all accidents are turned to good account. The manner in which Wilkie quickly learned to avail himself of these is proved by comparing No. 377 and No. 374, probably his first attempts at etching, the latter being dated 1814, with 351 to 356, dated 1815, or with 361 and 362, the Flemish Mother, dated 1821. It is to be remembered, however, that such modes of obtaining effects as by the use of the burr precludes the artist from taking many impressions; such etchings, therefore, must always be somewhat rare.

Some other etchings presented by the Etching Club, an association of artists for the promotion of etching, also form part of the collection; a careful examination of these will shew how completely the qualities for which each artist is celebrated in his pictures are evident also in the etchings, whether it be for expression, for drawing, for colour, or for general treatment of the story. The works comprised in this gift are marked E.C.

This catalogue contains only the paintings, drawings, etchings, &c. which are exhibited, many others are included in the Collection. The primary object in forming it being for "reference and instruction in the Schools of Art of the Department," and the exhibition to the public being made subject to the necessary arrangements for such purposes, it follows, that all the works are not at any one time to be found on the walls of the Exhibition, but only a selection, which will be periodically changed.

Those drawings and sketches which form part of Mr. Sheepshanks' gift are either specially named, or marked with the initial J. S.; of the rest, some have been purchased to add to the Collection, and some few obtained by gifts from the artists and others.

The gallery in which the pictures and drawings are exhibited was erected under the superintendence and from the designs of Captain Fowke, R.E., from data furnished by Mr. Redgrave, who has also carried out the internal decoration and the hanging and arrangement of the works.

NOTICE.—One of the conditions inserted in the deed of gift of the pictures from Mr. Sheepshanks provides that no works shall be copied or engraved without the express permission of the Artist.

ALPHABETICAL LIST OF CONTENTS.*

Barrett, G., 86.
 Barry, James, 81.
 Bonnington, R. P., 33.
 Brandard, R., 33. 86.
 Brocky, C., 86.
 Burnet, James, 34.
 Burnet, John, 34. 87.
 Calcott, Sir A. W., 34. 87.
 Carpenter, Marg., 36. 87.
 Clennell, Luke, 88.
 Clint, Geo., 36.
 Collins, W., 37. 88.
 Constable, John, 38.
 Cooke, E. W., 40. 88.
 Cooper, A., 41.
 Cope, C. W., 41. 89.
 Cox, D., 91.
 Cozens, J., 91.
 Creswick, T., 43.
 Crome, J., 43. 91.
 Danby, F., 44.
 Davies, R. B., 44.
 Dewint P., 92.
 Duncan, T., 45.
 Dyce, W., 92.
 Eastlake, Sir C., 45.
 Etty, W., 46.
 Frith, W. P., 46.
 Gauermann, F., 47.
 Girtin, T., 93.
 Havell, W., 93.
 Herbert, J. R., 94.
 Holland, J., 47. 95.
 Horsley, J. C., 47.
 Hunt, W. 95.
 Jackson, J., 48.

Lance, G., 49.
 Landseer, Sir E., 49. 96.
 Landseer, C., 52.
 Lee, Fred. R., 53.
 Leslie, C. R., 54. 97.
 Linnel, J., 59.
 Mulready, W., 60. 97.
 Mulready, W., jun., 65.
 Nasmyth, P., 66.
 Newton, G. S., 66.
 Nicholson, F., 100.
 Payne, 100.
 Penley, 100.
 Prout, S., 100.
 Redgrave, R., 66. 101.
 Rippingille, E. V., 68.
 Roberts, D., 68.
 Robson, G. F., 101.
 Rothwell, R., 69.
 Sandby, P., 101.
 Simson, W., 70. 101.
 Smirke, R., 70.
 Smith, G., 71.
 Stanfield, C., 71. 102.
 Starke, J., 72.
 Stothard, T., 73. 102.
 Townsend, H. J., 102.
 Turner, J. M. W., 75. 102.
 Uwins, Thomas, 76. 103.
 Varley, J., 103.
 Ward, James, 77.
 Webb, E., 103.
 Webster, T., 78. 103.
 Wilkie, Sir D., 79. 104.
 Witherington, F., 81.

* Notice.—In referring to the catalogue both of the oil paintings and the drawings, &c., the alphabetical order of the names should be followed rather than the numbers.

A CATALOGUE

OF THE

PICTURES, DRAWINGS, ETCHINGS, &c., in the BRITISH FINE ARTS
COLLECTIONS at CROMWELL GARDENS, SOUTH KENSINGTON, for the most part the GIFT of JOHN SHEEPHANKS, ESQ.

OIL PAINTINGS.

RICHARD PARKES BONNINGTON

Was born at Arnold, near Nottingham, Oct. 25, 1801, and died in London, Sept. 23, 1828. He studied his art in France, where his works had much influence on the rising school of landscape painters.

No. 1.—SUNSET.

A slight sketch on mill-board, $10\frac{3}{4} \times 12\frac{3}{4}$, oblong.

ROBERT BRANDARD

Was born at Birmingham, in 1805. In 1824 he came to London, and was for a short time under E. Goodall, studying as a landscape-engraver, in which art his works are well known; latterly he has occasionally painted landscapes.

No. 2.—HASTINGS FROM THE CASTLE HILL.

The castle is seen on the right. The view is looking towards St. Leonards.

Canvas, $16 \times 11\frac{3}{4}$, oblong. Signed.

No. 3.—THE EAST CLIFF, HASTINGS.

Cottages and fishing boats beneath the cliff.

Canvas, 16×12 , oblong. Signed, and dated 1834.

No. 4.—THE PRIORY, HASTINGS.

View looking towards the old town.

Canvas, 24×18 , oblong.

JAMES BURNET,

The youngest brother of John Burnet, was born in Musselburgh in 1788, and studied in the Trustees' Academy in Edinburgh. He came to London in 1810, and, after giving great promise as an artist, died July 27, 1816, at the early age of 28.

No. 5.—LANDSCAPE WITH CATTLE.

Three cows on the margin of a river; a white windmill across the stream, in the distance.

On panel, $10\frac{1}{4} \times 13\frac{1}{2}$, oblong.

No. 5.*—EVENING—MILKING TIME.

A farm-yard; a black cow lies in the foreground. On the right, farm-boys are riding a horse to water.

On panel, $14\frac{3}{4} \times 17$, upright.

JOHN BURNET

Was born at Edinburgh, March 20, 1784, and studied as an engraver under Mr. R. Scott, attending also the Trustees' School of Art, where he was companion with Wilkie. On his arrival in London he commenced engraving the pictures of his friend. His success in his first start led him to practise painting; the picture of "The Greenwich Pensioners," the companion print to Wilkie's "Chelsea Pensioners," being painted, as well as engraved, by himself. Mr. Burnet has also written many valuable works on art.

No. 6.—COWS DRINKING.

Four cows are drinking at a pool in the foreground.

On panel, $22\frac{1}{4} \times 15\frac{1}{4}$, oblong. Signed, and dated 1817.

No. 7.—THE FISH MARKET AT HASTINGS.

Under the cliff at Hastings; the boats are drawn up on the shore, and the fish being parcelled out for sale.

A rapid sketch on the spot, on canvas, 18×24 , oblong.

SIR AUGUSTUS WALL CALLCOTT, R.A.,

Was born at Kensington, in 1779, and at first studied for the musical profession under Dr. Cooke. He is said to have changed his profession from his admiration of some designs for Robinson Crusoe, by Stothard. He became a student of the Royal Academy in 1797, was elected an Associate in 1807, and to full membership in 1810. In 1837 he received the honour of knighthood from the Queen. His general practice was landscape painting, but late in life he painted several large figure subjects. He died Nov. 25, 1844.

No. 8.—ITALIAN LANDSCAPE.

Composition. Cows are standing in the pool of a river which runs into the picture, and is crossed by a bridge.

Millboard, $8\frac{3}{4} \times 7\frac{1}{4}$, oblong.

No. 9.—A BRISK GALE.

A Dutch East Indiaman landing passengers. A Dutch-built vessel is running into port on the right; on the left passengers are landing from a vessel of great length.

Canvas, $41 \times 26\frac{1}{4}$, oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1830.

No. 10.—SLENDER AND ANNE PAGE.

"Anne.—Will't please your worship to come in, Sir?

"Slender.—No, I thank you, forsooth, heartily; I am very well.

"Anne.—The dinner attends you, Sir.

"Slender.—I am not a hungry, I thank you, forsooth. Go, sirrah, for all you are my man; go, wait upon my cousin Shallow."

Merry Wives, Act 1, Scene 1.

On panel, 28×20 , oblong.

No. 11.—DORT.

A sunny meadow spotted with cattle forms the foreground; on the right two cowherds at their meals. Dort is seen across the river in the distance.

On panel, $30 \times 12\frac{1}{2}$, oblong. Signed, and dated 1841. Exhibited at R.A., 1842.

No. 12.—FALSTAFF AND SIMPLE.

Falstaff replies, on the part of the Fat Woman of Brentford, to Simple's questions.

"Simple.—About Mrs. Anne Page; to know if it were my master's fortune to have her, or no?

"Falstaff.—'Tis his fortune.

"Simple.—What, Sir?

"Falstaff.—To have her, or no: go, say the woman told me so."

Merry Wives, Act 4, Scene 5.

On paper, fastened on canvas, $14\frac{3}{4} \times 17\frac{1}{2}$, upright. Exhibited at R.A., 1835.

No. 13.—A SEA PORT.

Gale rising. On the left a jetty, with several fishermen watching a vessel running into port.

Canvas, 16×12 , oblong.

No. 14.—THE INN DOOR.

Gravesend. Peasants baiting their horses.

Millboard, $11\frac{3}{4} \times 4\frac{1}{4}$, oblong.

No. 15.—A SUNNY MORNING.

A group of cattle are standing among some rushes in a still pool. The landscape sleeps in the sunny mists of a summer's morning.

On canvas, $27 \times 35\frac{3}{4}$, oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1813.

No. 16.—COAST SCENE, WITH SHRIMPER.

The sea is darkened by a rising gale, the opposite shores of the bay are mountainous.

Canvas, $14\frac{1}{2} \times 10$, oblong.

MARGARET CARPENTER,

The daughter of A. R. Geddes, was born at Salisbury in 1793, and first studied art from the collections at Longford in 1814. Miss Geddes came to London and three years later married Mr. W. Carpenter, now keeper of the prints at the British Museum. Since that time she has been a constant exhibitor of portraits at our principal exhibitions.

No. 17.—DEVOTION.

St. Francis, a life-size study of a head in the attitude of prayer, in the hand a crucifix.

On canvas, 25×30 upright. Signed, and dated 1821. Exhibited at B. I., 1822.

No. 18.—THE SISTERS.

Portraits of the artist's two daughters. Two young ladies are looking over a folio book.

On panel, 14×12 , oblong. Signed, and dated 1839. Exhibited at B. I., 1840.

No. 19.—OCKHAM CHURCH.

A slight sketch.

On panel, 8×10 , upright.

GEORGE CLINT, A.R.A.,

Was born in Brownlow Street, London, April 12, 1770. Like Turner, he was the son of a hairdresser. He tried various occupations in the beginning of his career, but finally practised mezzotinto engraving. From this he was led to portraiture, more especially to portraiture connected with the stage. He was elected an associate of the Royal Academy in 1821, but resigned some years before his death, which took place in 1854.

No. 20.—PORTRAITS OF CHARLES YOUNG AS HAMLET AND MISS GLOVER AS OPHELIA.

Ophelia.—"My Lord, I have remembrances of yours,
That I have longed long to re-deliver;
I pray you, now receive them."

Hamlet, Act 3, Scene 1.

Canvas, 40×50 , upright.

No. 21.—SCENE FROM "PAUL PRY."

Liston, Madame Vestris, Miss Glover, and Mr. Williams.

(A Room at Hardy's.—Paul Pry, Col. Hardy, Eliza, and Phæbe.)

"Col. H.—You abominable person, how dare you open my daughter's room door?

"Paul Pry.—If there's no one concealed here, why object?

"Col. H.—True, if there's no one concealed here, why object?

"Phæbe.—I wonder, sir, you allow of such an insinuation (places herself before the door). No one shall enter this room; we stand here upon our honour."

On canvas, 24 × 50, upright. Exhibited at R.A., 1831.

No. 22.—LA PALERMITANA.

A lady in the dress of Palermo.

On canvas, 24½ × 30, upright.

No. 23.—SCENE FROM THE COMEDY OF THE "HONEYMOON."

(The Count concealed behind a picture.)

Volante.—"Confess that I love the Count! A woman may do a more foolish thing than fall in love with such a man, and a wiser one than to tell him of it. 'Tis very like him."

Honeymoon, Act 2, Scene 3.

On canvas, 28 × 21½, oblong.

WILLIAM COLLINS, R.A.,

Was born in London, Sept. 18, 1788, and entered as a student of the Royal Academy in 1807. In 1814 he was chosen an associate, and in 1820 a full member of that body. In 1836 Collins visited Italy, where a severe illness, caught by imprudently sketching in the noon-day sun, laid the foundation of the disease of which he died February 17, 1847. On his return from Italy he changed his style for a year or two, but reverted again to those truly English subjects which had won him his solid reputation, and which he continued to labour upon to the last.

No. 24.—THE VILLA D'ESTE, TIVOLI,

Looking from the gardens, through a group of tall cypresses, to the waterfall.

On panel, 11¾ × 16. Exhibited at R.A., 1842.

No. 25.—THE CAVES OF ULYSSES AT SORRENTO, THE BIRTHPLACE OF TASSO.

. . . "Not a cliff, but flings

On the clear waves some image of delight.

. . . Here, methinks,

Truth wants no ornament: in her own shape

Filling the mind, by turns, with awe and dread."

The caves are on the left of the picture, on the right a wide expanse of sea, with Naples in the distance.

On panel, 25 × 16, oblong. Signed, and dated 1843.

No. 26.—SORRENTO, BAY OF NAPLES.

On the left, under a chestnut tree, a Monk is reading to children ; on the right the sea is seen.

On panel, $16 \times 11\frac{3}{4}$, upright. Signed, and dated 1841.

No. 27.—RUSTIC CIVILITY.

Three children hold open the gate of a green lane for a passenger, whose shadow is projected on the foreground. The picture is very agreeable for colour, and the actions of the children simple and natural.

On panel, 24×18 , oblong. Signed, and dated 1833.

No. 28.—HALL SANDS, DEVONSHIRE.

An old fisherwoman with her pony is about to cross a rustic bridge over a runnel in the sands, which extend to a great breadth in the distance.

On canvas, $16\frac{1}{2} \times 21\frac{1}{2}$, oblong. Signed, and dated 1846.

No. 29.—THE STRAY KITTEN.

A group of children are enticing a stray kitten with a pan of milk.

On panel, 24×18 , oblong. Signed, and dated 1835.

No. 30.—BAYHAM ABBEY, NEAR TUNBRIDGE WELLS.

The remains of the abbey are seen across a piece of artificial water, on which is a punt with lads fishing. A sketch for a larger picture in the possession of the Marquess Camden, K.G.

On panel, $18 \times 13\frac{3}{4}$, oblong. Signed, and dated 1836.

No. 31.—SEAFORD, COAST OF SUSSEX.

From the top of the cliffs the view is over an extensive sandy bay. The painter has given the beautiful effect of cloud-shadows passing over the sea.

On panel, $36\frac{1}{2} \times 27\frac{1}{2}$, oblong. Signed, and dated 1844. Exhibited at R.A., 1844.

The study for the figures in this picture is among the Drawings, No.10.

No. 32.—COTTAGE INTERIOR.

An interior, with woman peeling apples, said to be a portrait of the artist's mother.

On panel, $15 \times 11\frac{1}{2}$, oblong. Signed, and dated 1814.

JOHN CONSTABLE, R.A.,

Was born in 1776, at East Bergholt, in Suffolk, where his father was a miller. His love for the scenery of his native place is shown from the many works painted from the vicinity of his birthplace.

He became a student of the Royal Academy in 1800, but devoted himself to the study of landscape. After some delay in acknowledging his merits, he was elected an Associate in 1819 and a full member in 1829. He died suddenly in London on March 30, 1837, a few nights after the close of the school of the Royal Academy at Somerset House, in which he was the last visitor.

No. 33.—SALISBURY CATHEDRAL.

The cathedral, one of the most perfect in England, occupies the middle ground of the picture; high trees bordering a meadow form the foreground. This picture was painted for some bishop of the diocese, who found some trivial fault with the dark cloud behind the cathedral, and finally declined to take it. It is one of the painter's best works.

On canvas, 34×42 , oblong. Signed, and dated 1823. Exhibited at R.A., 1825.

No. 34.—DEDHAM MILL.

The mill is seen on the right across the pool of a lock, and Dedham Church in the centre of the picture. This mill formerly belonged to Constable's father, and he himself worked in it.

On canvas, $30 \times 21\frac{1}{4}$, oblong. Signed, and dated 1820.

No. 35.—HAMPSTEAD HEATH.

In the foreground two men with a cart and two horses are loading gravel.

On canvas, 31×24 , oblong. Signed on the back. Exhibited at R.A., 1830.

There is a great difference in manner observable between this picture and No. 36, exhibited three years earlier.

No. 36.—HAMPSTEAD HEATH.

Looking from the hill towards the country, two donkeys are grazing in the foreground.

Painted on canvas, $30\frac{1}{2} \times 21$. Exhibited at R.A., 1827.

No. 37.—BOAT BUILDING, NEAR FLATFORD MILL.

In the middle of the picture a large barge is being constructed in a dry dock.

On canvas, $24\frac{1}{2} \times 20\frac{1}{4}$, oblong.

No. 38.—WATER MEADOWS, NEAR SALISBURY.

A broad stream flows across the foreground, over which the eye is carried to rich grass meadows.

On canvas, $18 \times 21\frac{1}{4}$, oblong.

This picture is very highly esteemed by the author of "The Life of Constable."

EDWARD WILLIAM COOKE, A.R.A.,

The son of an eminent engraver, was born in London in 1811. His first labour in art consisted in drawing the plants illustrating the Botanical Cabinet and Loudon's Encyclopedia. He afterwards turned his attention to shipping and craft, of which he etched and published a large collection. In 1832 he commenced painting in oil and has at various times visited Italy and France in the prosecution of his art. He was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy in 1851.

No. 39.—LOBSTER POTS.

In the foreground a lobster taken in a wicker pot, is contrasted with one hanging over the edge of the iron pot in which it has been boiled.

On canvas, $21 \times 15\frac{1}{2}$, oblong. Exhibited at B.I., 1836. There is a water-colour study for the picture among the Drawings, No. 17.

No. 40.—MENDING THE BAIT NETS.

Shanklin, Isle of Wight. A fisherman and child are mending the nets in a rough shed beneath the cliffs.

On canvas, $31 \times 16\frac{3}{4}$, oblong. Signed, and dated March 1836. Exhibited at R.A., 1836. There is a water-colour sketch for the picture among the Drawings, No. 18.

No. 41.—BRIGHTON SANDS.

Fishermen are landing fish from a vessel which has just come on shore. On canvas, $30 \times 25\frac{1}{2}$, oblong. Signed, and dated December 1837. Exhibited at B.I. 1838. A water-colour sketch for the picture among the Drawings, No. 15.

No. 42.—THE ANTIQUARY'S CELL.

A room containing a collection of armour, china, and old furniture, arranged in picturesque disorder.

Panel, $29\frac{3}{4} \times 22\frac{3}{4}$, oblong. Exhibited at B.I., 1836. A sketch for part of the picture among the Drawings, Nos. 5 and 107.

No. 43.—MONT ST. MICHEL, NORMANDY.

It is low water; a waggon and company of peasants are crossing the sands to the Mount.

On canvas, $31\frac{1}{2} \times 21\frac{1}{2}$, oblong. Signed, and dated 1831. Exhibited at B.I., 1832.

No. 44.—A MACKEREL.

A fish on the seashore.

Panel, 10×7 , oblong. Signed, and dated 1827.

No. 45.—PORTSMOUTH HARBOUR—THE HULKS.

The large old hulk, in picturesque decay, occupies the centre of the picture.

Panel, $16 \times 11\frac{3}{4}$, oblong. See sketch in water-colours among the Drawings, No. 106.

No. 46.—HASTINGS FROM ALL SAINTS' CHURCH.

The church is seen on the right, the view is down the opening towards the sea. Painted on the spot.

Millboard, 14 × 10, oblong.

No. 47.—WINDMILLS. BLACKHEATH.

A small sketch on paper. 7 × 11, oblong.

No. 48.—CARP.

A large fish, painted at Redleaf, in Kent.

On millboard, 20 × 15, oblong.

No. 49.—PORTSMOUTH HARBOUR—THE "VICTORY."

The "Victory" is in the mid-distance ; in front is a vessel running out of harbour.

Panel, 16 × 11 $\frac{3}{4}$, oblong.

These pictures are painted in mastic magilp, latterly the pictures by this painter are in copal.

ABRAHAM COOPER, R.A.,

Was born in Red Lion St., Holborn, in 1787. He began to study art in 1810. In 1817 he was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy, and a full Member of that Body in 1820.

No. 50.—A DONKEY AND SPANIEL.

An ass tied in a stable. In the fore-ground a spaniel lying on a yellow stable jacket.

On panel, 12 × 9, upright. Signed, and dated 1818.

No. 51.—GREY HORSE AT A STABLE DOOR.

A horse, with cart harness, is about to enter the stable.

On panel, 12 × 9, upright. Signed, and dated 1818.

CHARLES WEST COPE, R.A.,

Was born at Leeds in 1811, and educated at the grammar school in that town. Coming to London at the age of 15, he entered as a student at the Royal Academy in 1828. Early in life he visited Rome and Venice, and on his return, with a picture painted while in Italy, was soon appreciated by the public.

In the Cartoon competition of 1843, he was successful in obtaining one of the highest prizes for a cartoon of "Trial by Jury," and received commissions to paint in fresco in the House of Lords.

He was elected an Associate in 1843, and a full member of the Royal Academy in 1848, and is engaged in painting several subjects from British history in the Houses of Parliament.

No. 52.—PALPITATION.

A young lady anxiously waits for a letter, while the postman discusses the direction with an old servant who has answered his knock.

On panel, $22\frac{3}{4} \times 30$, upright. Exhibited at R.A., 1844.

A study in chalk for the head of the principal figure will be found among the Drawings, No. 20.

No. 53.—"THE YOUNG MOTHER."

A young wife, seated on a sofa, nurses her infant.

On panel, gesso ground, 10×12 , upright. Signed, and dated 1845. Exhibited at R.A., 1846.

No. 54.—THE HAWTHORN BUSH.

"The hawthorn bush, with seats beneath the shade,
For talking age and whispering lovers made."

Goldsmith's Deserted Village.

Signed, and dated 1842. Exhibited at R.A., 1842. Painted with mastic-magilp. On canvas, $34\frac{1}{2} \times 42$, oblong. The subject was first treated as an etching in the illustrations of the poem published by the Etching Club, and afterwards expanded into this picture.

No. 55.—MAIDEN MEDITATION.

A female, with a veil thrown back from the face, is reading from a book with clasps.

On canvas, $15\frac{1}{2} \times 25\frac{1}{4}$, upright, painted at once on a gesso ground. Signed, and dated 1846. Exhibited at R.A., 1847.

No. 56.—BENEFICENCE.

"Help thy father in his age, and forsake him not in thy full strength."

A young girl supporting her aged father up the steps of the church porch.

On panel, $17\frac{3}{4} \times 27\frac{1}{2}$, upright. Signed, and dated 1840. Exhibited at R.A., 1840.

No. 57.—ALMSGIVING.

"He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord; and look, what he layeth out it shall be paid unto him again."—Prov. xix.

A female surrounded by various others whom she is assisting.

On panel, $18 \times 27\frac{1}{2}$, upright. Signed, and dated 1839. Exhibited at R. A., 1840.

No. 58.—L'ALLEGRO.

"So buxom, blithe, and debonair."—Milton.

On panel, $18\frac{1}{4} \times 28$, upright. Signed, and dated 1848. Exhibited at R.A., 1848.

No. 59.—IL PENNEROSO.

"But hail, thou goddess, sage and holy,
Hail divinest Melancholy.

Come, but keep thy wonted state,
With even step and musing gait;
And looks commercing with the skies,
Thy rapt soul sitting in thine eyes;
There held in holy passion still,
Forget thyself to marble."—Milton.

On canvas, $18\frac{1}{4} \times 28$, upright. Signed, and dated 1847. Exhibited at R.A., 1848.

No. 60.—MOTHER AND CHILD.

The mother is hushing the child to sleep on her shoulder.

On thin canvas, gesso ground, $10 \times 14\frac{1}{4}$, upright. The picture was lined when in an unfinished state, which turned the greys brown-green, so that they had to be repainted. Signed, and dated 1852. Exhibited at R.A., 1852.

THOS. CRESWICK, R.A.,

Was born at Sheffield, in Yorkshire, in 1811, whence he removed to Birmingham, where he made some progress in landscape painting. Thence he removed to London, and became an exhibitor at Suffolk Street, and afterwards at the Royal Academy. He has constantly devoted himself to landscape art; occasionally, however, painting in conjunction with Ansdell and Frith. He was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy in 1842, an Academician in 1851.

No. 61.—A SCENE ON THE TUMMEL, PERTHSHIRE.

A mountain stream rushing over rocks into a quiet pool forming the foreground.

Upon canvas, 28×36 upright. Exhibited at R.A., 1844.

No. 62.—A SUMMER'S AFTERNOON.

On the right a stream discharges itself into a lake over a bed of rocks. On the left cattle standing in the water; a girl knitting watches them.

On canvas 40×50 , oblong. Exhibited R.A., 1844.

JOHN CROME

Was the son of a publican, and born at Norwich, Dec. 21, 1769. He bound himself apprentice to a house-painter, and by casual association with Ladbroke, whose age and tastes were similar, became an artist. He studied landscape painting in the picturesque environs of Norwich, where he eventually founded a school of painters having marked local characteristics. He died April 22, 1821.

No. 63.—MOONLIGHT, NEAR YARMOUTH.

The moon is seen rising behind a group of alders in the foreground. Across a stream a windmill and group of boats are lighted by its beams.

On canvas, $14\frac{1}{4} \times 12\frac{1}{4}$, oblong.

No. 64.—A WOODY LANDSCAPE.

A group of oaks form the left of the picture; a gleam of light in the mid-distance is seen through their dark stems. A labourer and two children are passing along the road.

FRANCIS DANBY, A.R.A.,

Was born near Wexford, Nov. 16, 1793, and coming to Dublin studied in the schools of the Society of Arts of that city. His picture of "Disappointed Love" is one of his earliest works, painted, indeed, prior to "Sunset after a Storm at Sea," which gained him much reputation, and was purchased by the late Sir Thomas Lawrence. As a painter of poetical landscapes he has no competitor. He was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy in 1825.

No. 65.—DISAPPOINTED LOVE.

A young girl with dishevelled hair sits in deep despondency on the brink of a dark pool overhung with trees; beside her lies a miniature and some well-worn letters, one of which she has just torn and cast upon the dark still waters. One dreads the next movement of disappointed love.

On panel, $24\frac{3}{4} \times 32$, oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1821.

No. 66.—CALYPSO'S ISLAND.

On the sandy shore Calypso muses on her lost lover. Trees grow down to the water's edge, behind which the sun is setting among craggy rocks over the tumbling waves of the land-locked bay.

On canvas, 33×46 , oblong. Signed.

No. 67.—LIENSFORD LAKE, NORWAY.

"A sudden storm, called a flanger, passing off, an effect which occurs on these lonely lakes nearly every day in autumn."

On canvas, $33\frac{1}{2} \times 46$. Signed. Exhibited at R.A., 1841.

RICHARD BARRETT DAVIES,

The eldest of nine sons, was born at Watford in 1782. At an early age he removed with his father to Windsor, and was placed under Mr. Evans of Eton. At the age of 19 he became a student of the Royal Academy, turned his attention to animal painting, and was much patronized by His Majesty George III. He died March 1854.

No. 68.—NEAR VIRGINIA WATER.

Two tall trees overshadow a cottage, backed by a part of the forest ; in the front, a pool of water covered with water-lilies,—a boy fishing on the margin.

On canvas, $17 \times 15\frac{1}{2}$, upright.

THOS. DUNCAN, A.R.A.,

Was born at Kinclaver, Perthshire, May 24, 1807. He was first placed with a writer, but afterwards allowed to follow his strong inclination for painting, and placed with Sir W. Allan. He was elected an Associate of the Scottish Academy, and in 1840 exhibited in London his picture of Prince Charles entering Edinburgh. In 1843 he was chosen an Associate of the Royal Academy of London, and died May 25, 1845.

No. 69.—THE WAEFU' HEART.

"I gang like a ghaist, and I care na to spin,
I dare na think of Jamie, for that wad be a sin.

I wish I were deed, but I'm no like to dee,
And why do I live to say, Waes me."—Auld Robin Gray.

The wae-fu' wife is seated on a low chair beside the fire in an attitude of deep despondency ; at her feet is a shepherd's colly dog.

Painted on panel, $23\frac{1}{2} \times 30\frac{1}{2}$, upright. Signed, and dated 1841. Exhibited at R.A., 1841.

SIR CHARLES LOCK EASTLAKE, P.R.A.,

Was born at Plymouth in 1795, and educated at the Charterhouse in London ; and afterwards entered as a student of the Royal Academy. In 1817 he visited Greece and Italy in company with Barry, the architect, and Brockeden, and during a residence of several years in Italy painted numerous incidents of Italian life. In 1827 he was elected an Associate, and in 1830, a full member of the Royal Academy ; and on the death of Sir M. A. Shee in 1850, became president of that body, and received the honor of knighthood. He has contributed many valuable works to the literature of art.

No. 70.—A PEASANT WOMAN FAINTING FROM THE BITE OF A SERPENT.

"Nina Raniere, a young peasant woman of the Roman State while kneeling before a chapel of the Madonna was bit by a viper ; she sunk into a lethargy in a short time, and, it is said, died two days after."

On canvas, $22 \times 18\frac{3}{4}$, upright. Signed. Exhibited at R.A., 1831.

No. 71.—AN ITALIAN CONTADINA AND HER CHILDREN,

On canvas, $18\frac{1}{4} \times 14\frac{1}{2}$, upright. Signed, and dated Rome, 1823. Exhibited at B. I., 1824.

WILLIAM ETTY, R.A.,

The son of a miller and spice maker of York, where he was born March 10, 1787. He was apprenticed to a printer, and served a long and weary period to that trade; but at 19, by the help of his relatives, he was enabled to leave it, and to come to study art in London. In 1807 he entered as a student of the Royal Academy, and continued to study there during the rest of his life. He visited Italy in 1816 and 1822, and on his return in the latter year he was elected an Associate, and in 1828 a full member of the Royal Academy. He died in his beloved city of York, Nov. 30, 1849.

No. 72.—THE HEAD OF A CARDINAL.

A study from life of a head, with crimson habit.

Millboard inlaid in panel, $7\frac{1}{2} \times 9\frac{7}{8}$, unright. Exhibited at R.A., 1844.

No. 73.—CUPID SHELTERING PSYCHE.

Cupid drawing an embroidered robe about the youthful Psyche to shelter her from a rising storm; in the distance a little figure is seen herding sheep.

On panel, $17 \times 13\frac{1}{4}$, upright. Exhibited at B. I., 1823.

WILLIAM POWELL FRITH, R.A.,

Was born at Harrogate in 1819, but came to London early, and was admitted a student of the Royal Academy in 1837, where he soon became an exhibitor. He was elected an Associate in 1845, and a full member in 1853. The thoroughly English character of his subjects have made his works great favorites with the public.

No. 74.—HONEYWOOD INTRODUCING THE BAILIFFS TO MISS RICHLAND AS HIS FRIENDS.

"Honeywood.—Two of my very good friends, Mr. Twitch and Mr. Flanigin. Pray, gentlemen, sit without ceremony."

"Miss Richland (aside).—Who can these odd-looking men be? I fear it is as I was informed."

"Bailiff.—Pretty weather, very pretty weather for the time of year, madam."

Goldsmith's "Good-natured Man," Act 3, Scene 7.

On the left two bailiffs, grotesquely attired, bow awkwardly to Miss Richland, who courtesies, introduced by Honeywood; Miss Richland's servant is behind her.

On canvas, 41×28 . Signed, and dated 1850. Exhibited at R.A., 1850.

FREDERIC GAUERMANN,

Born at Vienna, in which city he is animal painter to the Court. He has practised both animal painting and etching; several of the latter works are among the Collection given by J. Sheepshanks, Esq.

No. 77.—WOLVES AND DEER.

Three wolves are dragging down a fine stag; the doe, to escape them, leaps over a rocky precipice.

On canvas, 22 × 27, upright. Signed, and dated 1834.

No. 78.—WILD BOAR AND WOLF.

A rocky, woody landscape; in the foreground, a wild boar and sow with cubs are startled by the appearance of a wolf.

On canvas, 33 × 29, oblong. Signed, and dated 1835.

JAMES HOLLAND,

Was born at Burslem, in Staffordshire, October 17, 1800, and for some time practised as a flower painter on china. He subsequently painted in water colours, exhibiting with the Old Society of Water Colour Painters. A prolonged visit to Italy led him to change his practice to landscape painting in oil.

No. 79.—NEAR BLACKHEATH.

A slightly painted landscape study from nature, being Blackwall Reach from Charlton Fields: on the right a pool and group of willows; some sheep on the left, and the river seen in the distance.

On canvas, 31½ × 19½, oblong.

No. 80.—NYMWEGEN.

A broad expanse of river; on the right a quay, with some vessels unloading.

On canvas, 19½ × 13, oblong.

JOHN CALLCOTT HORSLEY, A.R.A.

This painter, the grand nephew of Sir A. Callcott, was born at Brompton, January 29, 1817; he studied in the schools of the Royal Academy. He was for some time one of the head masters of the School of Design at Somerset House. In the Cartoon competition of 1843, he was successful in obtaining one of the prizes, and received a commission to paint in fresco in the House of Lords. He was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy in 1854.

No. 81.—THE CONTRAST: YOUTH AND AGE.

An old man and child entering the chancel door of a church. The old man pauses to look at a new made grave.

On panel, 16 × 18, upright. Signed, and dated 1839. Exhibited at R.A., 1840.

No. 82.—WAITING FOR AN ANSWER.

A retainer, waiting an answer for his master from the lady of the mansion, is seeking a reply to his own love question to my lady's maid.

On panel, 22 × 16½, oblong. Exhibited at B.I., 1841. The background is from the garden door at Haddon, Derbyshire.

No. 83.—THE RIVAL PERFORMERS.

A young page playing on a flageolet has excited the rivalry of a canary. The youth is arrested in his playing by the lady, his companion, who desires to listen to the notes of the bird.

On panel, 16 × 18, oblong. Signed, and dated 1839. Exhibited at B.I., 1839. The back ground is from the beautiful recessed window in the "steward's parlour" at Haddon.

JOHN JACKSON, R.A.,

Was the son of a tailor at Lastingham, in Yorkshire, where he was born in 1778, and subsequently apprenticed to his father's trade; but through the kind patronage of Sir George Beaumont he was enabled to leave a business he disliked and to study art in the Royal Academy. He chose portraiture as his profession, and being elected an Associate in 1815, and a member of the Royal Academy in 1817, subsequently visited Italy. He died in 1831.

No. 84.—PORTRAIT OF THE ARTIST.

A three-quarter head, life size.

On canvas, 25 × 30. A canvas has been reversed, and the picture painted on the unprimed side.

No. 85.—PORTRAIT OF THE LATE EARL GREY.

A three-quarter head, life size, of the distinguished Reform Peer.

On canvas, 25 × 30. This picture has become injured from being painted with asphaltum.

GEORGE LANCE

Was born at Little Easton, near Colchester, in 1802. He was for some time a pupil of Haydon's, and also in the schools of the Royal Academy. Although especially eminent as a painter of still life, he has from time to time produced subject pictures also.

No. 86.—FRUIT.

A melon, grapes, plums, and filberts, grouped together.

On panel, size 14 × 17, oblong.

Signed G. L. Dated 1842. Exhibited at B.I., 1843.

SIR EDWIN LANDSEER, R.A.,

Youngest son of John Landseer, the engraver, was born in London in 1802, and was very early taught to draw by his father, his taste leading him from the first to the study of animals, as will be seen by various drawings in this Collection, some made when he was only five years old. He became a student of the Academy in 1816; in 1826 he was elected an Associate, and in 1831 a Member of the Royal Academy; in 1850 Her Majesty conferred on him the honour of knighthood.

No. 87.—A HIGHLAND BREAKFAST.

This picture contains the varied incidents of a Highland breakfast. The mother has just moved her child from the cradle, and herself gives it its morning meal. Before her, on a three-legged stool, is her porridge, and in the back ground an oat cake on the girdle for the gude man. In front, three or four terriers and sheep dogs are breakfasting from a bowie of milk. One of them, lank and drawn, is at the same time giving their morning meal to three fat puppies.

On panel, 26 × 20, oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1834.

No. 88.—THE DROVER'S DEPARTURE.—A SCENE IN THE GRAMPIANS.

This picture contains a host of incidents arising out of the departure of the herds from the Highlands to the south. In the foreground the grandfather has his horn filled with Mountain Dew by his bonnie daughter, whose husband just behind her caresses the youngest child ere he starts: "Lad and lass foregather ere they part." The sheep, the bulls, and the goats are assembled in long droves. The old dog that is to accompany them suckles her puppies for the last time: in the foreground a hen drives one of them from her chickens. The Tethered Ram, No. 95, seems to have been studied for this picture.

On double canvas, 75½ × 49½, oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1835.

No. 89.—“THE DOG AND THE SHADOW.”

A dog with a piece of flesh in his mouth is crossing a brook by means of a fallen tree, and stops to gaze at the treacherous image of himself and his prize reflected in the stream. A worsted cap and some shoes on the bank indicate that some butcher's lad who has loitered to fish and bathe has been plundered meanwhile of his charge.

On panel, 18 × 22, oblong. Signed E. L., 1822. Exhibited at B. I., 1826.

No. 90.—A FIRESIDE PARTY.

In a rude bothy several terriers are coupled together, and are lying and sitting before the fire. To the left a dish and some household utensils. Painted from the dogs of Malcolm Clarke, Esq., of Inverness and said to be the original Peppers and Mustards described by Sir Walter Scott in the Antiquary.

On panel, 14 × 10, oblong. Exhibited at B. I., 1829.

No. 91.—“THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE HOME.”

A Scotch terrier, just returned to the barrel that forms his kennel, raises a whine of satisfaction. A snail crawling over the stone pavement hints at the abiding love of home.

On canvas, 29½ × 25¼, oblong. Exhibited at B. I., 1842.

No. 92.—“THE TWA DOGS.”

“ Upon a bonnie day in June,
When wearing thro' the afternoon,
Twa dogs, that were na thrang at hame,
Foregather'd ance upon a time.
—Wi' daffin weary grown,
Upon a knowl they sat them down,
And then began a lang digression
About the lords o' the creation.”—Burns.

Cæsar, represented by a noble Newfoundland dog,

“ His locked, letter'd, braw brass collar
Shewing the gentleman and scholar,” reclines on a sandy knoll, in easy conference with the “faithfu' tyke Luath.”

On canvas, 21 × 16¾, oblong. Signed E. L., 1822.

No. 93.—THE OLD SHEPHERD'S CHIEF MOURNER.

The shepherd's coffin rests near the ground in a rude cottage: it is covered by a plaid and a blanket, partially drawn aside, on which sits the dog of him that is at rest. It presses its breast lovingly against the coffin that contains all that remains of its late master, so faithfully served while in life, so truly mourned in death. On a three-legged stool, the clasped Bible and spectacles are laid, speaking of reverence and age; the stick and the bonnet, too, are there; and the rosemary sprigs spread upon the coffin-lid and floor tell of old world customs passing away or only held sacred in the solitary hills.

On panel, 24×18 , oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1837.

No. 94.—A JACK IN OFFICE.

The "Jack in Office," a surly overfed cur, with an air of vulgar importance which is wonderfully characteristic, guards the dogs'-meat barrow confided to his care. The barrow is furnished with all the necessaries of trade, painted with wondrous appreciation of their several qualities. The copper scales seem even thin from constant wiping. On the left a lank, hungry hound stands with watering mouth over a skewer of meat in the master's basket. An old retriever, seated on his haunches, condescends to beg of the surly Jack; in the background a consequential and well-fed terrier scents the treat, but affects to despise it, while in front a puppy contents himself with feasting on a savoury skewer which has been thrown aside. This picture was treated as a political caricature by "H. B.," almost as clever as the work which originated it.

On panel, $26 \times 19\frac{3}{4}$, oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1833.

No. 95.—TETHERED RAMS.

Two rams are tethered to an old fallen tree, and watched by two sheep dogs; in the mid-distance the flock are feeding under the care of a shepherd, who is talking to a Scotch lassie near him. A loch and mountains form the background.

On panel, 24×18 . Exhibited R.A., 1839.

No. 96.—SANCHO PANZA AND DAPPLE.

Sancho leans upon Dapple, who is about to eat a crust that his master has spared him from his wallet.

On panel, $7\frac{1}{2} \times 6\frac{1}{4}$. Signed E. L., 1824.

No. 97.—THE ANGLER'S GUARD.

A fine brown Newfoundland dog is seated with a white Italian greyhound watching the fish basket and utensils of an angler.

On panel, $5\frac{3}{4} \times 5$. Exhibited at B. I. 1814.

No. 98.—A NAUGHTY CHILD.

A little boy squeezed up beside a doorpost exhibits a perfect state of "sulks."

On millboard, 15×11 , upright. Exhibited at B.I., 1834.

No. 99.—SUSPENSE.

A bloodhound watching at a closed door, within which some wounded knight has recently been borne. His gauntlets are left outside, and a torn eagle plume on the floor, and the blood drops in a continuous line speak of the wounds that he has received.

On panel, $35\frac{3}{4} \times 27\frac{1}{2}$, oblong. Exhibited at B.I., 1834.

No. 100.—COMICAL DOGS.

Two wiry haired terriers, the size of life, are seated side by side. The one has a Scotch bonnet on his head; the other a woman's cap and a short pipe in its mouth. One almost hears the light-hearted laugh of the master, who has so decorated them.

On panel, $30 \times 27\frac{1}{2}$, oblong. Exhibited at B.I., 1836.

No. 101.—YOUNG ROEBUCK AND ROUGH HOUNDS.

The young buck has been killed and fallen over some rocks; four hounds are gathered near the carcass.

On panel, 21×17 , upright. Exhibited at B.I., 1840.

No. 102.—THE EAGLE'S NEST.

The female eagle sits on the shelf of a rock above her eaglets, and screams to her returning mate.

On millboard, 14×10 , oblong. Exhibited at B.I., 1834.

CHARLES LANDSEER, R.A.,

The elder brother of the animal painter, was born in 1799, and early instructed by his father; subsequently, in 1816, he entered into the schools of the Royal Academy as a student. In 1837 he was elected an Associate, and in 1845 a member of that body, and in 1851, on the resignation of Mr. Jones, he was appointed Keeper of the Royal Academy, an office which includes the duty of giving instruction in the antique school.

No. 103.—THE TEMPTATION OF ANDREW MARVELL.

Lord Danby offering a prize of 1,000 guineas to the Member for Hull.

"Andrew Marvel represented Kingston-upon-Hull in the Parliaments of Charles the Second's time, with whose lively conversation the Merry Monarch was much delighted; and the next morning, after an evening spent in Marvell's society, the King sent the Lord Treasurer Danby with a particular message from himself, to request his acceptance of 1,000 guineas. Marvell lodged on the second floor in a court near the Strand; his Lordship found him writing, and delivered his errand. 'Pray what had I for dinner yesterday?' said Marvell, appealing to the servant. 'A shoulder of mutton, sir.' 'And what have I to-day?' 'The remainder, hashed.' 'And to-morrow, my Lord, I shall have a sweet blade-bone broiled; and I am sure, my Lord, His Majesty will be too tender in future to bribe a man with golden apples, who lives so well on the viands of his native country.' The Lord Treasurer withdrew with smiles, and Andrew Marvell sent to his bookseller for the loan of a guinea."

Marvell is seated at a table. A female servant is bringing in his dinner. Lord Danby is seated opposite; behind are two of his pages who have carried the gold.

On double canvas, 50 × 40, oblong. Exhibited at the R.A., 1841.

No. 104.—STERNE'S MARIA.

Maria, seated in melancholy sadness on the roadside bank, holds her little wandering dog by a string. The dog is said to have been painted by Edwin Landseer.

On canvas, 18½ × 22, upright.

No. 105.—THE HERMIT.

"Far in a wild, unknown to public view,
From youth to age a rev'rend hermit grew.
The moss his bed, the cave his humble cell,
His food the fruits, his drink the crystal well.
Remote from man, with God he passed his days,
Prayer all his business, all his pleasure praise."—Parnel.

An aged man, in the dress of a Franciscan monk, is reading before a crucifix and skull. On canvas, 18½ × 22, upright.

FREDERICK RICHARD LEE, R.A.,

Was born at Barnstaple, in Devonshire, 1799, and early entering into the army, served a campaign in the Netherlands; retiring from the service on account of ill health, he commenced art as a landscape painter, choosing for his subjects our native scenery. Some pictures of dead game, fish, &c., painted for the late Mr. Wells, show that his power is versatile had he chosen to exercise it. He was elected an Associate in 1834, and a member of the Royal Academy in 1838. Latterly he has at times painted in conjunction with Sidney Cooper.

No. 106.—NEAR REDLEAF.

A sketch from nature on the Medway. An autumn study of oaks and alders on the banks of the river.

On panel, 8½ × 11½, oblong.

No. 107.—GATHERING SEA-WEED.

A wide expanse of sandy-shored bay, with shrimpers. On the right a low pier, a man and woman loading sea-wreck on to a cart with two horses.—The scene probably on the Lincolnshire coast.

On canvas, 30 × 36, oblong. Signed, and dated 1836. Exhibited at R.A. 1836.

No. 108.—A DISTANT VIEW OF WINDSOR.

From St. George's Hill.—A sandy bank on the left; on the right, a road with extensive distance.

On millboard, 14 × 10, oblong.

CHARLES ROBERT LESLIE, R.A.

Was born in London, of American parents, in 1794, but quitted it in 1799 for Philadelphia, where he was educated. Returning to England in 1811, he studied art under West and Allston, and in the schools of the Royal Academy, of which body he was elected an Associate in 1821, and a full member in 1826, and in 1848 undertook the duties of Professor of Painting. He has contributed also to illustrate art by his pen in the "Hand-book for Young Painters," and "The Life of Constable."

No. 109.—SCENE FROM "THE TAMING OF THE SHREW."

"Petruchio.—Braved in mine own house with a skein of thread!

Away thou rag, thou quantity, thou remnant,

Or I shall so bemetee thee with thy yard

As thou shalt think on prating whilst thou livest!

I tell thee—I—that thou hast marred the gown."

Act 4, Scene 3.

Petruchio thrusts back the gown to the frightened tailor, whose blanched lips shew his trepidation. Katharine sits on the left in no very happy musing mood, every line in her face pourtraying her temper, while she bites her jewelled necklace. The meat she was scarcely permitted to taste is on a table to the right, while Grumio near it joins in reviling the unhappy tailor. The much abused cap that "was moulded on a porringer,—a velvet dish," is lying on the floor in front, and an attendant stoops to pick it up. Hortensio is seen in the background.

This picture, painted in 1832, is a repetition with alterations of that in the Petworth Collection.

On canvas, oblong, 28 × 20½.

No. 110.—THE PRINCIPAL CHARACTERS IN "THE MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR."

The scene is not in the play, but is alluded to in Act 7, Scene 2, as taking place in Page's house:—"There's pippins and cheese to come."

At the table Page is sitting, and offers a cup of sack to Slender, who is waited upon by the stolid Simple. On the right, the fat knight jokes with the two "merry wives," and Bardolph, as a serving man, is talking to Page's son. Sweet Anne Page sits placidly beside her inapt wooer. At the foot of the table Justice Shallow and Parson Hugh observe Slender admiringly. The characters of the personages of the drama are admirably conceived.

On canvas, lined, $36\frac{3}{4} \times 52\frac{1}{2}$, oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1838.

No. 111.—"WHO CAN THIS BE?"

A portly Burgomaster walking in some public garden with his handsome young wife receives a most courtly salute from a young gallant; the face of the husband shows evidently the puzzled expression indicated by the phrase "Who can this be?" While the wife puts on an unconscious look, and plays with her spaniel.

Painted on canvas, 29×23 , oblong. Exhibited at R.A. 1839.

No. 112.—"WHO CAN THIS BE FROM?"

The lady seen in the last picture is now seated at her toilet; a serving wench brings in a letter. The mistress, curious, yet doubting, hesitates to receive it; in the background, the portrait of the old burgomaster looks frowningly down upon them.

On canvas, 29×23 , oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1839.

No. 113.—MY UNCLE TOBY AND WIDOW WADMAN.

"'I am half distracted, Captain Shandy,' said Mrs. Wadman, holding up her cambric handkerchief to her left eye, as she approached the door of my Uncle Toby's sentry-box.—'A mote, or sand, or something, I know not what, has got into this eye of mine—do look into it—it is not in the white.' In saying which, Mrs. Wadman edged herself close in beside my Uncle Toby. . . . 'Do look into it,' said she. Honest soul! thou didst look into it, with as much innocency of heart as ever child looked into a raree show-box." Tristram Shandy, vol. 2, chap. 24.

The simple-hearted soldier is seated in the narrow summer-house beneath the map of Dunkirk. The comely widow, pressed in close beside him, is drawing aside the lid from a bright eye, in which his intense gaze sees neither dust nor the love with which she so fondly hopes to inspire him.

On canvas, $22\frac{1}{2} \times 32\frac{1}{2}$, upright. Painted 1832.

No. 114.—FLORIZEL AND PERDITA.

"Perdita.— . . . O! Proserpina.
For the flowers now that frighted thou lettest fall
From Dis's waggon
. these I lack
To make you garlands of, and my sweet friend
To strew him o'er and o'er."

Winter's Tale, Act 4, Scene 3.

Perdita in the shepherd's cottage with Mopsa, Florizel, Polixenes and Camillo. She is presenting them with flowers.

On canvas, 29×21 , oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1837.

No. 115.—AUTOLYCUS.

Autolycus selling his wares.

"Lawn as white as driven snow ;
Cyprus black as e'er was crow ;
Gloves as sweet as damask roses."

Winter's Tale, Act 4, Scene 3.

Autolycus, with his pack strapped before him, is singing his ballads. Mopsa, Clown, and Dorcas bearing a part.

On canvas, 21 × 29, oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1836.

No. 116.—"LE BOURGEOIS GENTILHOMME."

"M. Jourdain.—Hola ! ho ! Doucement ! Diantre soit la coquine !

"Nicole.—Vous me dites de pousser.

"M. Jourdain.—Oui ; mais tu me pousse en tierce avant que de pousser en quarte, et tu n'as pas la patience que je pare."

Act 2, Scene 3.

In the centre of the picture Nicole, broom in hand, makes a lunge at her master, who, clumsily attempting to parry it, receives a palpable hit. Madame Jourdain, on the right of the picture, enjoys the victory of the untaught but adroit Nicole over her master, who fences only according to the rules of art.

On canvas, 38½ × 24, oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1841.

No. 117.—"LES FEMMES SAVANTES."

Trissotin reading his sonnet.

Trissotin.—' Si vous la conduisez aux bains,
Sans la marchander davantage,
Noyez-là de vos propres mains.'

"Philamente.—On n'en peut plus.

"Belise.—On pâme.

"Armande.—On se meurt de plaisir.

"Philamente.—De mille doux frissons vous vous sentez saisir."

Act. 3, Scene 2.

In a room lighted with wax candles Trissotin is sitting pompously reading his poem ; Philamente, Belise, and Armande, seated opposite to him, affect to be entranced in admiration. Henriette sits apart.

On canvas, 30 × 39, upright. Exhibited at R.A., 1845.

No. 118.—"LE MALADE IMAGINAIRE."

Mons. Pourgon, Argan, Beralde, Toinette.

"M. Pourgon.—J'ai à vous dire que je vous abandon à votre mauvaise constitution, à l'intempérie de vos entrailles, à la corruption de votre sang, à l'acreté de votre bile, à la féculence de vos humeurs.

"Argan.—Ah ! miséricorde !"

Act 3, Scene 6.

Argan pillowed in a sick chair at the foot of his bed appeals anxiously to M. Pourgon, who is leaving the room in a rage. Toinette behind her master's chair enjoys the success of her stratagem ; while Beralde regards the doctor with scorn and contempt.

On canvas, 24 × 38½, oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1843.

These three last pictures are intentionally treated in a slight and rapid manner of execution.

No. 119.—DON QUIXOTE AND DOROTHEA.

A sketch for the picture at Cashiobury.

"'Beauteous lady,' replied Don Quixote, 'I will not answer one word, nor hear one circumstance of your affairs until you rise from the ground.' 'I will not rise signor,' answered the afflicted damsel, 'until I have obtained from your condescension the boon I beg.' Sancho whispered softly in his master's ear, 'Your worship may safely grant the boon she asks, which is a mere trifle; no more than the slaying a giantish sort of fellow.'" Book 4, Cap. 1.

Don Quixote unarmed and almost naked, assisting Dorothea to rise from her knees.

Panel, 8 × 11, oblong.

No. 120.—LAURA INTRODUCING GIL BLAS TO ARSENEA.

Arsenea reclines on a couch; behind, Laura leans over and introduces Gil Blas to her.

On canvas, 10½ × 8½, oblong.

No. 121.—A FEMALE HEAD.

A lady seated, with her back to the spectator, turning her face partly round to him. On her left arm a yellow scarf.

On panel, 9 × 6¾, oval.

No. 122.—QUEEN KATHARINE AND PATIENCE.

"Queen Katharine.—Take thy lute, wench; my soul grows sad with troubles; Sing and disperse them if thou canst; leave working."

Henry VIII., Act 3, Scene 1.

Katharine, pale and sad, sits by her work-table. Patience stands beside her, playing on the lute.

On canvas, 23 × 30, upright. Exhibited at R.A., 1839.

No. 123.—AMY ROBSART.

Dressed in black velvet up to the throat; her head crowned with a coronet of pearls. Leicester's disowned young wife sits in sad and musing loneliness: her arm rests on her neglected lute.

On panel, 9 × 11, upright. Signed, and dated 1823.

No. 124.—THE TWO PRINCES IN THE TOWER.

The two young princes kneel at the bed-foot at their prayers before retiring to rest, perchance on the fatal night on which they were removed from their prison to an enduring kingdom in Heaven. A picture of the same subject, but less complete, was in the possession of the late Mr. Rogers.

On canvas, 17 × 13, oblong.

No. 125.—THE TOILETTE; A LADY EXAMINING A NECKLACE.

A lady in a loose dressing gown is seated at her toilette table, attentively looking at one of the cameos of a necklace.

On panel, 12 × 10, upright.

No. 126.—THE PRINCESS ROYAL.

Portrait of H.R.H. sketched for the picture of the christening.

A small circular portrait, the head reclines on a pink cushion.

On millboard, $3\frac{1}{2}$ dia. Signed, and dated on the back 20 Feb. 1841.

No. 127.—PORTIA.

... "Oh me, the word choose! I may neither choose whom I would, nor refuse whom I dislike; so is the will of a living daughter curbed by the will of a dead father."

Merchant of Venice, Act 1, Scene 2.

She is dressed in white, fastened on the shoulder with jewels.

On panel, 10 × 8, upright; oval.

No. 128.—GRISELDA.

The sad lady and patient mother is about to leave her lord's house in obedience to his command; she is dressed simply in her under garments: leaving behind the rich robes of her marriage life she is about to reassume her peasant's dress.

On panel, 8 × 10, upright; oval.

No. 129.—PORTRAIT OF HER MAJESTY IN THE CORONATION ROBES.

A slight sketch of the Queen kneeling at the altar table: made for the picture of the coronation.

On canvas, 24 × 18, oblong.

No. 130.—A GARDEN SCENE.

Portrait of the youngest son of the artist with his toys. The background is the garden of the painter's late residence in the Edgware Road.

On canvas, 12 × 16, oblong.

No. 131.—DULCINEA DEL TOBOSO.

The peasant mistress of Don Quixote, clad in a red bodice, is engaged in tying up her long back hair. The naïve expression and sweet smile of the damsel are no disparagement to the taste of the Don in his choice of a mistress.

On panel, 12 × 10, upright. Exhibited at R.A., 1839.

No. 132.—SANCHO PANZA.

Sancho when governor of Barataria is prevented from eating by the interdict of the physician.

"He took his place at the upper end of the table, which was accommodated with one seat only and a cover for himself alone, while close by him stood a personage, who afterwards proved to be his physician, with a rod of whalebone in his hand. . . .

A page tucked a bib under Sancho's chin, and another, who acted the part of a sewer, set a plate of fruit before the governor; but scarce had he swallowed a mouthful, when the doctor touching the said plate with his wand, it was snatched from him in a twinkling."

Don Quixote, Book 3, Chap. 15.

On panel, 12 × 9, upright. Exhibited at R.A., 1839.

The pictures of Landseer and Leslie are very interesting in connexion with the question of the preservation of British works of art, since we can compare the present state of these painters' works with the vehicle which has been used in painting them. Generally the pictures of both of these artists are perfectly sound and unchanged, and as Mr. Leslie is known to have painted his with mastic magilp, and Landseer is believed to have done so likewise, it would show that this medium, when not used in improper quantities, is as safe and trustworthy as can be desired. Some of these pictures have been long varnished, but do not show any signs of those opening cracks which are sure to appear when asphaltum is used, but which do not seem necessarily to result from the use of magilp. Two or three places in the "Drover's Departure for the South" have been touched with asphaltum laid on probably on the "varnishing days," to enrich the darks; these small spots will be seen to have entirely failed, while the rest of the surface is firm, bright, and wholly unchanged. Wilkie is known, at the period when his principal work in this collection was painted, to have made an undue use of magilp, besides adding asphaltum to it. He used to say, "magilp is a colour," and to lay it on pure and full even over his flesh, for the sake of its golden yellow tone; beautiful when first laid on, but utterly destructive, as it solidifies and changes, when so used. Newton, whose picture has sadly failed,* is known to have covered his work every successive day with a film of asphaltum, and to have painted into it. Mulready's pictures, on the contrary, are mostly painted with copal, and asphaltum entirely rejected; these also seem as fresh and pure as if just from the easel.

JOHN LINNEL

Was born in London in 1792, and commenced the study of art under John Varley. In early life he practised portrait painting and has preserved to us the features of many eminent contemporary artists. Latterly he is more known as a landscape painter, and one who combines art with a close observation and study of nature.

No. 133.—THE WILD FLOWER GATHERERS.

Three young girls with flowers in their laps are seated on the margin of a meadow.

On panel, $8\frac{1}{4} \times 6\frac{1}{4}$, oblong. Signed, and dated 1831; on the back, 1834.

* It has been repaired by Mr. Bentley, under the sanction of the authority vested in Mr. Mulready by the deed of gift.

No. 134.—MILKING TIME.

A white cow ready for milking stands by a pool of water ; a boy is carrying a pail of milk ; in the distance figures milking. A picturesque wattled shed and pollard oak form the background of the subject.

On panel, $22\frac{1}{4} \times 15\frac{1}{4}$, oblong. Signed on the back "Cow yard, 1832."

WILLIAM MULREADY, R.A.,

Was born at Ennis, in Ireland, in 1786, but came early to London and was admitted as a student of the Royal Academy at the age of 14. He is one of the few artists who have been elected both Associate and full member of the Academy within the year, the election for the former honour taking place in November 1815, and for the latter in February 1816.

No. 135.—NEAR THE MALL, KENSINGTON GRAVEL PITS.

Although the neighbourhood is extremely changed, some of the objects in this picture are still to be seen in the vicinity of the Mall.

On canvas, $18\frac{3}{4} \times 13\frac{1}{2}$ oblong. Painted in 1813. Exhibited at R. A., 1844.

No. 136.—THE MALL, KENSINGTON GRAVEL PITS.

This landscape was partly taken from the Mall as it stood in 1812, and partly composed. It was painted with mastic magilp and asphaltum. After this period most of the artist's works are painted with copal.

On canvas, $19\frac{1}{4} \times 14$. Painted in 1812. Exhibited at R.A., 1844.

No. 137.—BLACKHEATH PARK.

This was the view from the window of the late residence of Mr. Sheepshanks at Blackheath ; the ground is now much built over.

On the right hand a pond of clear water reflects the vivid autumnal colours of the trees beyond ; in the mid-distance a field rises towards a clump of trees, with some sheep feeding on the grass ; on the left hand labourers are at work by the road side. The execution of this work deserves especial attention ; the look of extreme completion being given with much more facility than at first appears to be the case.

On panel, $24 \times 13\frac{1}{2}$. Exhibited at R.A., 1852.

No. 138.—THE SEVEN AGES.

"All the world's a stage."

The artist, taking the suggestions of the poet as a theme, has sought to epitomize the various states of man's existence,—as labour and pleasure, freedom and captivity, riches and poverty, weakness and strength—together with the characteristics of the various ages of man's life. In the middle ground, on the right, the child is seen, just born into a world of restless change and labour. A peasant removing, carries the household goods upon his back; the mother is burdened, not only with her young babe, but with some chattels also.

Beside them the labour of intellect is indicated by the pale, worn student with his book, who looks with some envy on the lover, a youth of his own age, whose lighter labour is bounded by "a sonnet on his mistress' eyebrow." The burly justice contrasts with his schoolboy son in the middle ground. Behind them is a gatehouse prison; from their prison over the arch the captives endeavour to obtain alms by dropping a shoe to the passers-by. Beneath, the rich and free go forth to enjoy the sports of the field. On a hill on the right stands a feudal castle, showing all the incidents of feudal rule; the gibbet and the axe, the traitors' heads surrounding the keep, are dimly seen. In the front a soldier is chastising a youth; the lad has made sport of him, who, in the last stage of all, is dragged forth to inhale once more the spring-tide air. Sans eyes, sans teeth, sans everything, his attendant endeavours to awaken the imbecile man to the salutation of one only less ancient than himself. On the ground an old hound, weak as his master, is tormented by a playful puppy, while the giant that draws forth the aged dotard, stops to drink.

The original design of this picture was drawn on wood as a frontispiece to the illustrations of Shakspeare's Seven Ages, published by Van Voorst. The drawing was cut by J. Thompson, and a proof of it is in the collection, No. 252.

On canvas, 45 × 35½, oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1838.

No. 139.—THE FIGHT INTERRUPTED.

The picture represents the playground of a school. A fight between the boys is interrupted by the appearance of the master, who has taken the youngest, but evidently the most pugnacious combatant by the ear: the lad's doubled fists, and firmly set teeth, prove that he is quite ready for another round, while his bigger adversary, showing the blood from his mouth to a group of backers, is evidently not sorry for the interruption. Two boys appeal to the master for and against the adverse parties. This picture is a fine example of the painter's early study of the Dutch school.

On panel, on a gesso ground, 37 × 28½, oblong. Painted in 1815, Dated 1816, the year of its exhibition in the R.A. The picture was painted for Lord Whitworth, then Viceroy of Ireland. At his death it passed through one of his co-heiresses into the possession of the Earl of Delawar, of whom it was purchased by Mr. Sheepshanks.

No. 140. GIVING A BITE.

A greedy young peasant is enforcing a bite from an apple from a timid country lad, who reluctantly permits the smallest possible portion to be exposed to his teeth. A young girl and sleeping child are beside them. The monkey of an Italian boy, seated in the foreground, equally dreads a bite from the greedy peasant's dog.

The dogs in the several pictures by this artist are well worthy of attention, both from their variety of character, and the extremely appropriate species introduced in the different subjects. Compare, for instance, the dog in No. 145 with that in No. 148, or in this picture.

On panel, $20 \times 15\frac{1}{4}$, upright. Signed, and dated 1834. Exhibited at R.A. 1836.

No. 141.—FIRST LOVE.

A girl, just budding into womanhood, leans against a wall, with an infant brother asleep in her arms; behind her a youth, in a red smock-frock, resting on a stile, regards her with a look of intense love: neither seems to speak, both being entirely absorbed, yet fully conscious of each other and of the intense feeling of first love. The shouts of the mother and brother, calling to the evening's meal, are utterly unnoticed in their deep absorption; beneath the style two dogs are playing with and fondling each other.

On canvas, $30\frac{1}{2} \times 24\frac{1}{2}$. Painted 1839. Exhibited at R.A., 1840.

No. 142.—AN INTERIOR, INCLUDING A PORTRAIT OF MR. SHEEPSHANKS.

Mr. Sheepshanks is sitting on a sofa turning over a folio of Drawings; a servant attends with a cup of coffee and letters. The room is one in which Mr. Sheepshanks resided in Old Bond Street. It has a highly decorated fire-place, and an enriched cornice runs round it. The drawings No. 75, 76, 77, 78, are curious as showing the great pains taken to be accurate in the ornamental details, and to arrange the composition of the several parts agreeably.

On panel, $20 \times 15\frac{3}{4}$, upright.

No. 143.—OPEN YOUR MOUTH AND SHUT YOUR EYES.

A little girl with eyes closed is kneeling on the grass beside a brook. A man lying on the bank bobs a cherry against her lips; a young child is beside them.

A study for the male figure among the Drawings, No. 64.

On panel, $12\frac{1}{2} \times 12$. Painted 1838. Exhibited at R.A., 1839.

No. 144.—BROTHER AND SISTER; OR, PINCHING THE EAR.

A young lad is pinching the ear of his little brother which the sister nurses on her arms. This subject, somewhat varied, has been repeated of a larger size, in fulfilment of a commission left by the late Mr. Vernon for Mr. Mulready, and is now placed among the Vernon Collection in the National Gallery.

On panel, $12 \times 9\frac{3}{4}$, upright. Signed, and dated 1836. Exhibited at R.A., 1837.

No. 145.—CHOOSING THE WEDDING GOWN.

"I had scarce taken orders a year before I began to think seriously of matrimony, and chose my wife as she did her wedding gown, not for a fine glossy surface, but such qualities as would wear well;—but Mrs. Primrose was glossy and fond of gloss, and her fondness for gloss was punished."

The vicar and his future wife gaily dressed, are before the counter of a mercer, who is showing them a piece of stuff, which the lady examines most carefully. Behind, an errand boy is giving a message to the mercer's wife. A little dog lies at the foot of the counter, and on a stool beside it some of the purchases made by the future Mrs. Primrose, a bunch of orange blossom and some rich hangings, probably for that green bed which is described as the limit of their annual migrations. The colour and execution of this work deserve especial attention.

On panel, $21\frac{1}{4} \times 17\frac{3}{4}$, upright. Painted for Mr. Sheepshanks, and exhibited at R.A., 1846.

No. 146.—THE SONNET.

Seated beside some beeches on the rough stones of the margin of a brook, a young girl is reading with intense delight a sonnet made in her praise by the youth beside her. He stoops down with bashful shyness to look into her face, to feel the impression his poetic labours have made upon her.

In this picture the artist has sought to give the effect of sunlight diffused and cool by being partly obscured; in No. 141, which hangs beside it, the effect sought has been the coloured light at the going down of the sun.

On panel, 14×12 , upright. Exhibited at R.A., 1839.

No. 147.—THE SAILING MATCH.

"Creeping like snail unwillingly to school."

As You Like it, Act 2, Scene 7.

A young girl urges onwards an unwilling schoolboy, who, while crossing a foot bridge, lingers, desiring to join the sports of a party of youngsters who are sailing paper boats on the stream. One of the boys is blowing through a roll of paper to urge on his boat, while another rushes forward from the cottage in the background, bearing a pair of bellows above his head in triumph.

This picture is a reduced imitation of one painted in 1831 for John Gibbons, Esq.

On panel, $14 \times 11\frac{3}{4}$, upright.

No. 148.—THE BUTT.—SHOOTING A CHERRY.

A boy, seated on a basket of linen, is shooting cherries into the mouth of a butcher's boy, who plants himself as steadily as possible on his feet and holds his mouth open to catch them. Two females—cherrysellers,—are looking on enjoying the trick, a genuine butcher's cur, stands beside his master.

Lined canvas, $18 \times 15\frac{1}{4}$, oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1848.

No. 149.—THE TOY SELLER.

A poor negro mendicant is offering a toy for sale to a mother with an infant. The child shrinks from the black with a feeling of dread.

On panel, $9\frac{3}{4} \times 7\frac{1}{2}$, oblong. Signed, and dated 1835. Exhibited at R.A., 1837.

No. 150.—THE INTERCEPTED BILLET.

A stern man is holding a bouquet from which a billet has been taken. an attendant stoops to look over his shoulder.

The centre part of the picture is on panel, screwed into a zinc trough, and the edges filled in with cement of isinglass and whiting and then prepared for painting, so as to give the artist room to carry out an idea that had grown under his hands. It is painted in white lac.

$8\frac{1}{4} \times 10$, upright. Exhibited at R.A., 1844. Presented to Mr. Sheepshanks by the artist.

No. 151.—A COTTAGE AT ST. ALBANS.

Canvas, 10×14 , upright.

No. 152.—PORTRAIT OF MR. SHEEPSHANKS.

Painted in 1832 on paper fixed on panel. $6\frac{1}{2} \times 5\frac{1}{4}$.

No. 154.—STILL LIFE.

A small highly finished study of a stone bottle, a glass bottle, earthen pan, &c.

Millboard, $5\frac{1}{8} \times 5\frac{1}{2}$. Signed, and dated 1809.

No. 155.—HAMPSTEAD HEATH.

Landscape sketch with two figures to the right.

Millboard, $10 \times 5\frac{1}{2}$, oblong. Signed, and dated 1806.

No. 156.—STUDY FOR THE PICTURE OF "THE RATTLE."

A man seated showing a rattle to his little child.

Panel $3\frac{7}{8} \times 4\frac{1}{8}$. Painted in 1807.

No. 157.—LANDSCAPE WITH COTTAGE.

Panel, $8\frac{3}{4} \times 7\frac{1}{2}$, upright.

No. 158.—LANDSCAPE WITH COTTAGES.

Figures in the foreground, a pond of water with lilies to the right.

Panel, oblong, $17\frac{1}{2} \times 14$.

No. 159.—A SKETCH FOR THE PICTURE OF "PUNCH."

A slight sketch in colour for the picture painted in 1812, the property of Sir J. Swinbourn. It is interesting as a first thought for the arrangement of colour, and may be compared with the chalk sketch of composition No. 60 among the Drawings.

Canvas, $12\frac{1}{2} \times 8$, upright.

No. 160.—LANDSCAPE.

A cottage with trees, two children, one blowing a horn.

Millboard, $13 \times 10\frac{1}{2}$, upright.

No. 161.—HAMPSTEAD HEATH.

Slight sketch with cows.

Signed and dated 1806. Millboard, $10\frac{1}{4} \times 6$, oblong.

No. 162.—PORTRAIT OF A LITTLE GIRL.

Panel, $9 \times 6\frac{3}{4}$.

No. 162.*—COTTAGES.

Millboard, $8\frac{1}{2} \times 6\frac{1}{2}$, oblong. Dated 1806.

W. MULREADY, JUN.,

Second son of William Mulready, was born in 1805, and studied art under his father.

No. 163.—TEAL.

Two teal of the natural size are painted lying on a stone slab.

On canvas, $14 \times 17\frac{1}{2}$, oblong. Signed, and dated 1831. Exhibited at R.A., 1835.

No. 164.—AN INTERIOR.

Seated on his basket dozing in the sun, at the door of an outhouse, a baker's man waits while a female examines his account.

On panel, $16 \times 20\frac{1}{2}$, oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1838.

PATRICK NASMYTH

Was the son of an artist, and born in Edinburgh in 1786. He came to London at the age of 20, and followed his profession of a landscape painter with great success ; he died in 1831.

No. 165.—LANDSCAPE. SIR PHILIP SIDNEY'S OAK.

A large oak tree on the right of the picture is believed to be that planted in Penshurst Park at the birth of Sir P. Sidney in 1555.

Canvas, 21 × 16, oblong.

G. S. NEWTON, R.A.

Was born at Halifax, Nova Scotia, in Nov. 1794, came to England in 1817, received his first incentive to art from the pictures of his uncle Stewart, the portrait painter. He became a student R.A. in 1821, an Associate in 1828, and R.A. 1833. He died August 1835.

No. 166.—PORTIA AND BASSANIO.

Portia.—"There are some shrewd contents in yon same paper,
That steal the colour from Bassanio's cheek ;
Some dear friend dead ; else nothing in the world
Could turn so much the constitution
Of any constant man. What ! worse and worse ?
With leave, Bassanio ; I am half yourself,
And I must freely have the half of anything
That this same paper brings you."

Salerio, booted and spurred, has just arrived with Antonio's sad missive to his absent friend ; in the centre of the picture Bassanio reads his letter evidently touched to the heart at its contents ; leaning on his shoulder Portia discerns his sorrow in his face and action, and tenderly asks to share it. On the left of the picture Nerissa and her lover look with anxious interest on the principal group.

This picture had become very much injured in the surface owing to the employment of asphaltum. The hand of Bassanio was totally changed, and a great part of the figure of Salerio disfigured ; it has, however, been restored by Mr. Bentley (vide p. 59).

On canvas, 36 × 42, upright. Signed, and dated 1831. Exhibited at R.A. 1831.

RICHARD REDGRAVE, R.A.,

Was born April 30, 1804, in Pimlico. Until nearly 20 years of age he assisted his father in the charge of a large manufactory, and in making drawings and designs for the works. He entered as a student of the R.A. in 1826, was elected an Associate in 1840, and a full member in 1851. Being since 1847 connected with the Government Schools of Design, he now holds the office of Inspector General for Art in the Department of Science and Art. His paintings of figure subjects earned for him his first reputation, but in later years he has also become a landscape painter.

No. 167.—CINDERELLA ABOUT TO TRY ON THE GLASS SLIPPER.

"That minx," said the step-sister, "to think of trying on the slipper."

The two envious sisters have already tried and failed to draw on the little slipper. The prince has himself accompanied the herald, and leads forth Cinderella, whom he already begins to recognize, to make her attempt. Banished from the family she comes forward among the servants.

Painted in mastic magilp on canvas, 56×42, oblong. Purchased by Mr. Sheepshanks from the artist. Exhibited at the R.A., 1842.

No. 168.—THE SCHOOL TEACHER.

"She sees no kind domestic visage near."

An orphan, whose mourning dress shows that her loss is recent, condemned to the drudgery of the teacher's office, is seated in the school-room at her lonely evening meal. Her task for the day is evidently not ended, for the desk is covered with exercises to correct, and work to set right. In her hand is a letter from the home which poverty has obliged her to quit, for labour in which she meets with sympathy neither from the Principal nor the Scholars.

Canvas, 36×28, upright. Signed, and dated 1844. Exhibited at R.A., 1845. For sketch for two of the children, see Drawings Nos. 83 & 197.

This picture is a repetition, with considerable changes, of one painted for Mr. Hippisley, of Shobrooke Park.

No. 169.—GULLIVER EXHIBITED TO THE BROBDIGNAG FARMER.

"This man, who was old and dim-sighted, put on his spectacles to behold me better, at which I could not forbear laughing very heartily, for his eyes appeared like the full moon streaming into a chamber at two windows."

The artist's aim has been to represent Gulliver as of ordinary stature, and to show the Brobdignags as giants; hence the accessories that surround him, the fruit, the dice, the money, the wasp, &c. are intended to give scale to the background figures.

Painted with magilp, on canvas, 30×25, oblong. Exhibited, at B.I., 1836. Engraved on steel by Mollison.

No. 170.—THROWING OFF HER WEEDS.

A young widow whose "weeds" have but the smallest affinity to "mourning" is preparing to change them for wedding garments. The bonnet with orange blossoms and various subjects on the toilette tell of the change. The portrait of the late husband, old and stern, is seen in the background, behind the screen.

Panel, 30×24½, oblong, painted in copal. Signed, and dated 1846. Exhibited same year.

No. 171.—OPHELIA WEAVING HER GARLANDS.

"There is a willow grows aslant a brook
That shows his hoar leaves in the grassy stream,
Here with fantastic garments did she come."

Hamlet, Act 4, Scene 2.

Ophelia is seated, unconscious of the danger of her position, on the trunk of a willow that lies over the deep waters of a still pool, where the brook seems to pause in its course. She sings as she twines her wild flower wreaths.

Panel, 30×25, upright. Signed, and dated 1842.

No. 172.—BOLTON ABBEY.—MORNING.

The view is taken looking down the stream, the portion of the Abbey still used as a church being seen on the cliffs.

Canvas, 30½×12½, oblong. Signed, and dated 1847. Exhibited at R.A., 1848.

EDWARD VILLIERS RIPPINGILLE

Is the son of a farmer, and was born at King's Lynn, in Norfolk, in 1798. As an artist he is self-taught. He became known to the public in 1819 by his picture of "The Country Post Office," and among the works of a similar class which he afterwards painted, are "The Recruiting Party," "The Stage Coach Breakfast," "Going to the Fair," &c. In 1837 he went to Italy, and subsequently to the East, painting subjects of those countries. He obtained one of the prizes in the Cartoon competition at Westminster in 1843. Mr. Rippingille has lectured on Art, and claims to be the first who advocated the formation of schools of design; he also edited the "Artist and Amateurs Magazine."

No. 173.—MENDICANTS OF THE CAMPAGNA.

On the back is the following :—

"Beggars of the Campagna Romana. Mem.—This picture, sent for exhibition at the R.A., was placed on the floor and has never been seen by the public. Painted almost entirely with a magilp of solution of sugar of lead in water and mastic varnish. 1844. Bought of the artist by J. S., Esq."

Canvas, 22½×14½, oblong. Signed, and dated Roma, 1840. London, 1844.

DAVID ROBERTS, R.A.,

Was born in Edinburgh in 1796, and brought up as a decorative painter. In 1822 he came to London and was long engaged as scene painter at one of the principal theatres. On the formation of the Society of British Artists he became Vice-President, and for some time exhibited with them. He visited Egypt, and the Holy Land, Petra, Baalbec, and other places in the East when they were far less accessible than at present, and has published a series of drawings made during these journeys and during a former one to Spain. In 1839 he was elected A.R.A., and R.A. in 1841.

No. 174.—ENTRANCE TO THE CRYPT, ROSLYN CASTLE.

"Prentice Pillar" is on the left and two figures near it, one of them, a milkmaid, having laid down her three-legged stool and pail on the pavement.

Panel, $30 \times 24\frac{1}{2}$, upright. Signed, and dated 1843.

No. 175.—OLD BUILDINGS ON THE DARRO, GRANADA.

Ranges of picturesque buildings bordering on a small stream over which is a one-arch bridge. The belfry of a church rises about the centre of the picture in the distance. A man in a sombrero is arranging his fishing tackle on the right.

Canvas, $24 \times 17\frac{3}{4}$. Exhibited at B. I., 1835. Signed, and dated 1834.

No. 176.—THE GATE OF CAIRO, CALLED BÁB EL-MUTAWELLEH.

The southern gate of the old city, now in the centre of modern Cairo; it is more commonly called Báb Zuweyleh. The gate of which the round towers are seen in the picture was founded in the year A.D. 1087; the minarets above, together with a fine mosque, were added subsequently.

The view is taken from the street called Darb el-Almar. The light woodwork surmounting each minaret is to carry lamps which are suspended at night during the month of fasting or on the two annual festivals, &c. The galleries are used by the Muëddin at prayer-time.

Panel, $30 \times 24\frac{3}{4}$, upright. Signed, and dated 1843.

RICHARD ROTHWELL

Was born in Athlone about the year 1800, and entered the Dublin Society's Drawing School in 1815. He removed to London on the death of Sir Thos. Lawrence, and obtained much reputation as a portrait painter; subsequently he visited Italy and America.

No. 177.—THE LITTLE ROAMER.

"Her path 'mid flowers."

A child leaning against a bank, in her hand is a bunch of wild flowers she may be supposed to have gathered in her ramble.

Canvas, $33\frac{1}{4} \times 50$, upright. Exhibited at R.A., 1843.

No. 178.—NOVICIATE MENDICANTS.

Two children looking upwards as if they had only half made up their minds to beg.

Canvas, $29 \times 36\frac{1}{2}$, upright.

The surface of this picture was so much cracked as entirely to injure its effect, but, like No. 165, being capable of restoration, it was entrusted to Mr. Bentley for that purpose.

No. 179.—THE VERY PICTURE OF IDLENESS.

A young girl sitting with her hands crossed listlessly, is looking out at the spectator.

Sign. Canvas, upright, 28 × 30.

WILLIAM SIMSON

Was born at Dundee in 1800. He was educated at the Trustees' Academy in Edinburgh. After some success in art in London, he died in Sloane Street, 29th August 1847.

No. 180.—THE INTERIOR OF A CATTLE SHED.

A young calf stands near a milk vessel on the right; a hen and chickens occupy the foreground; for the latter a small and slight sketch in oil exists among the collection of drawings.

Millboard, 13 $\frac{3}{8}$ × 18, oblong. Signed W.S., and dated 12 Jan. 1845.

No. 181.—GIL BLAS INTRODUCING HIMSELF TO LAURA.

Gil Blas in his borrowed toilet, bending on one knee, finds little coyness in the reception he experiences from the object of his attentions. The damsel's face has, perhaps, but a slight dash of Spanish in its character.

Canvas, 28 × 36, upright. Signed, and dated 1840.

No. 182.—WILLIAM TELL.

A figure in a black cap, with an arrow in his girdle, leaning his right hand on the butt end of his cross-bow.

On the back, "Study of a head, William Tell."—William Simson, 1845. Panel, 11 × 16, upright.

ROBERT SMIRKE, R.A.,

Born at Wigton, near Carlisle in 1752, was originally a painter of coach panels. He came early to London with his father, entered as a student in the Royal Academy at the age of 19, but afterwards devoted his long life of art chiefly to subjects in illustration of popular authors, especially Cervantes. His first pictures at the Royal Academy were exhibited in 1786; in 1791 he was elected an Associate, and in 1793 a full member. He died in 1845.

No. 183.—SCENE FROM THE "HUMOROUS LIEUTENANT."

The duel.

On panel, size 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ × 5, oblong.

No. 184.—ILLUSTRATION FROM BEAUMONT AND FLETCHER.

On panel, size 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ × 5, oblong.

GEORGE SMITH

Was born in London on the 18th April 1829, and commenced the study of art in Mr. Carey's school; he was admitted as a student of the Royal Academy in 1845, and was placed for some time in the studio of Mr. Cope.

No. 185.—"ANOTHER BITE."

A boy in a smock frock is seated on the bank of a pond fishing for perch, and watching his float, which is supposed to have just moved, with intense expectation, while his sister leans on his shoulder and sympathises, but less eagerly, in his excitement. The fish he has caught are on the grass beside him.

Panel, 22×18, oblong. Signed, and dated 1850.

No. 186.—TEMPTATION—A FRUIT STALL.

A group of children are gathered round a stall of tempting fruit, &c., placed close to the school gate. Some purchases have already been made. One is looking wistfully and half resolved to buy. A little child is begging some money from its mother, who is searching in her pocket to gratify its wish.

Panel, 30×35, oblong. Signed, and dated 1850.

No. 187.—CHILDREN GATHERING WILD FLOWERS.

A little child is seated in a rude cart at the corner of a wood, and two others, who have gathered a quantity of wild flowers, are bringing them to dress her.

Panel, 22×18, oblong. Signed G. Smith, 1851.

CLARKSON STANFIELD, R.A.,

Was born at Sunderland about 1798, and brought up to the sea, whence the complete nautical knowledge which characterizes his works. He was for some years in the scene room at Drury Lane Theatre, where he executed many unrivalled works; and when the Society of British Artists was founded, he became one of their principal exhibitors. An Associate of the Royal Academy in 1832, he was elected an Academician in 1835, and has rarely failed to contribute to our annual exhibitions.

No. 188.—NEAR COLOGNE.

Some picturesque buildings of a mill raised against a half ruined tower. In front is a ferry boat rowing towards a wooden landing place.

On canvas, 42×34½, upright. Signed, and dated 1829.

No. 189.—A MARKET BOAT ON THE SCHELDT.

A boat full of market people, &c. is moored to a buoy on a river, and a man standing up in it hails another seen at some little distance.

A Dutch man-of-war lies a little further off. On the left is a wooden pier with figures, and a point of colour is gained in the foreground by a floating basket. The flat Dutch shore is seen trending away to the right.

On panel, $48\frac{3}{4} \times 33$, oblong. Signed, and dated 1821. Exhibited, R.A., 1826.

No. 190.—SANDS NEAR BOULOGNE.

A seashore with fishing boats and figures; in the background is seen the wooden pier of Boulogne, and beyond, the downs, topping the cliffs with the Roman ruin above them. A fisherman, holding one of the shrimping nets which the women use, is seen in the foreground with other figures, and fish and crabs are on the beach.

On canvas, $43\frac{1}{2} \times 28$, oblong. Signed, and dated 1838. Exhibited at R.A., 1838.

JAMES STARK

Is the son of a dyer, and was born at Norwich in 1794, and in 1811 became for three years a pupil of the late John Crome, afterwards in 1817 entering as a student of the Royal Academy. In 1827 he published a series of designs from the rivers of Norfolk.

No. 191.—FISH PONDS, HASTINGS.

A little runlet in the foreground of the picture is crossed by some planks. Two lads are on the bank—one dipping water.

On millboard, $10 \times 13\frac{1}{2}$, oblong.

No. 192.—LLOYD'S PULPIT, FESTINIOG, NORTH WALES.

A remarkable rock, so called, rises just at the margin of a water fall.

On panel, $13 \times 10\frac{3}{4}$, oblong.

No. 193.—PONDS AND WINDMILLS, HASTINGS.

A broad reedy pool on the further bank, a windmill and some cottages.

On panel, $16\frac{1}{2} \times 12$, oblong.

No. 194.—LANDSCAPE.

A road on the skirts of a common—two figures and some cottages in the mid-distance.

On millboard, 7×8 , upright.

No. 195.—A DISTANT VIEW OF WINDSOR.

A woody glade and some deer. Windsor Castle seen in the distance.

On panel, $10\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{3}{8}$, upright.

No. 196.—LANDSCAPE.

A woody lane near Hastings—on the right a gamekeeper crossing a stile.

On millboard, 7×8 , upright.

THOMAS STOTHARD, R.A.,

Was born in Long Acre, London, in 1756, and commenced life as a pattern drawer for silk, and, subsequently, as a book illustrator, in the practice of which he may be said to have achieved his greatest reputation—for grace and sweetness his single figures and compositions have never been surpassed. He was a most industrious artist, and beside many thousand book illustrations, contributed numerous designs for goldsmith's and other decorative works; of this latter are the designs for the Wellington shield. He was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy in 1791, and a full member in 1794. In the last years of his life he held also the office of Librarian. He died in April 1834.

No. 197.—SHAKESPEAR'S PRINCIPAL CHARACTERS.

In the centre Cordelia supports her father's head, on her right are Prospero and Miranda, Rosalind and Celia, Falstaff and his companions—also Sir Andrew Ague Cheek, Sir Toby Belch, Malvolio, and Olivia; these complete the side of the picture devoted to comedy. On the left of the centre is a most beautiful impersonation of Ophelia, from whom the moody Hamlet turns away. The group is completed by Lady Macbeth and the weird sisters.

On panel, $14\frac{1}{4} \times 55\frac{1}{4}$, oblong. Signed, and dated 1812.

No. 198.—TAM O'SHANTER.

“ Now do thy speedy utmost, Meg,
And win the keystone o' the brig.
There at them thou thy tail may toss,
A running stream they dare na' cross.
But ere the keystone she could make,
The feint a tail she had to shake.”

Tam is on his mare Maggie; she is in full gallop, and is near the keystone of the bridge, on crossing which is safety; the witches are behind in full pursuit, and “Cutty Sark” has just deprived Maggie of her tail.

On canvas, $12\frac{1}{2} \times 14\frac{1}{2}$ upright.

No. 199.—JOHN GILPIN.

" Away went Gilpin—who but he?
His fame soon spread around ;
He carries weight ! he rides a race,
'Tis for a thousand pound ! "

The horse is dashing by with his powerless rider ; four men spurring in pursuit are betting upon the supposed race.

On canvas, $12\frac{1}{2} \times 14\frac{1}{2}$, upright.

No. 200.—SIR ROGER DE COVERLEY AND THE GYPSIES.

" One, who was older and more sunburnt than the rest, told him that he had a widow in his line of life."—Vide Spectator, No. 130.

Sir Roger, accompanied by the Spectator and leading his horse, is accosted by the female fortune-teller.

On panel, $6\frac{1}{2} \times 8$, upright.

No. 201.—" TWELFTH NIGHT."

" Sir Toby Belch (singing).—' There dwelt a man in Babylon ; lady ! lady ! '"

" Malvolio.—My masters are you mad? or what are you? Have you no wit, manner, nor honesty, but to gabble like tinkers at this time of night? Do you make an alehouse of my lady's house, that you squeak out your cozier's catches without any mitigation or remorse of voice? Is there no respect of place, person, or time in you?"

Act 2, Scene 3.

The uproarious trio, Sir Andrew, Sir Toby, and the clown, are shouting out their dramatic catch, to the horror of Malvolio and the amazement of Maria.

On canvas, $9\frac{7}{8} \times 7\frac{1}{4}$, upright.

No. 202.—BRUNETTA AND PHILLIS.

" Brunetta was now prepared for the insult, and came to a public ball in a plain black silk mantua, attended by a beautiful negro girl in a petticoat of the same brocade with which Phillis was attired. This drew the attention of the whole company, upon which the unhappy Phillis swooned away."—Vide Spectator, No. 80.

On the right Phillis sinks into the arms of her attendants, while the triumphant Brunetta passes on, rejoicing in the success of her stratagem.

On canvas, $9\frac{7}{8} \times 11$, oblong.

No. 203.—SANCHO AND THE DUCHESS.

Seated in the front, attended by her ladies and the duenna, the Duchess listens to Sancho, who is on a low chair beside her.

On canvas, $9\frac{7}{8} \times 7\frac{1}{4}$, upright.

The above three pictures are on one canvas, $12\frac{3}{4} \times 31$, oblong.

No. 204.—SCENE FROM THE "TEMPEST."

"Ariel.— All but the mariners,
 Plunge in the foaming brine, and quit the vessel,
 Then all a-fire with me: the king's son Ferdinand
 Was the first man that leap'd: cried, 'Hell is empty,'
 And all the devils are here." Act 1, Scene 2.

Ferdinand in the foreground is rushing from the vessel and his companions.

On canvas, $12\frac{3}{8} \times 10\frac{1}{4}$, oval.

No. 205.—CONSTANCE AND ARTHUR.

"Constance.—Here I and sorrow sit."
King John, Act 3, Scene 1.

Constance seated on the ground embraces her little son; grouped around her are the other personages of the drama.

On canvas, $12\frac{1}{2} \times 11\frac{1}{4}$, oblong, oval.

No. 206.—FAME, AS AN ALLEGORY.

Fame is seated on the top of a pinnacle or pyramid; around her in the air a group of young genii are blowing bubbles.

On panel, $6\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{1}{2}$, upright.

JOSEPH MALLORD WILLIAM TURNER, R.A.,

Was born in London in 1775, and commenced art as a painter in water colours, in friendly rivalry with Girtin. He became a student of the R.A. in 1789, in 1800 was elected an associate, and in 1802 a full member of that body. He was for some time professor of perspective also. Of the present school of water-colour painters he may well claim to be one of the principal founders; and his landscapes, both in water and in oil, rank him as one of the greatest masters of his art, both for fertility of invention and for the truthful realization of air and light. He died at Chelsea in 1851, bequeathing to the nation the numerous works that remained in his own possession, and his funded property for the benefit of his less fortunate brothers in art. His will, however, has been set aside from some legal informality, and this latter intention will not be not carried out in conformity with his wishes.

No. 207.—LINE-FISHING OFF HASTINGS.

Various boats are in the foreground line-fishing; Hastings, seen under a burst of sunlight forms the background; a two-masted vessel is wearing off shore.

On canvas, 31×24 , oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1835.

No. 208.—VENICE.

A gorgeous effect of sun on the city, the boats, and the lagune.
On canvas, 36×24 , oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1840.

No. 209.—ST. MICHAEL'S MOUNT, CORNWALL.

The mount is seen in the middle of the picture in a flood of light, several vessels are lying dry upon the sands. On the right hand, fish are laid out for a shore market.

On canvas, 31×24 , oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1834.

No. 210.—EAST COWES CASTLE, ISLE OF WIGHT.

The regatta, with the royal yacht squadron parting from its moorings.
On canvas, $48\frac{1}{2} \times 36$. Exhibited at R.A. 1828.

No. 211.—VESSEL IN DISTRESS OFF YARMOUTH.

A life-boat is going off to a stranded vessel, which is seen on the right of the picture, making blue light signals of distress. Two of the females whose fathers or husbands man the boat eagerly watch it from the sands, their position indicating the long recession of the waves, which are boiling and tumbling under the influence of the storm.

On canvas, 48×36 , oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1831.

THOMAS UWINS, R.A.,

Was born at Pentonville in 1783, and studied originally as an engraver. Leaving this branch of the profession he studied art in the schools of the Royal Academy, and became a designer of book illustrations. He was an early member of the Water-colour Society, to which he was elected in 1811. In 1826 he visited Italy, and during a prolonged residence, collected materials for the works by which he is now best known. On his return, he was in 1833 elected an associate of the Royal Academy, and a full member in 1836. He also for some time held the office of librarian. He died at Staines in 1857.

No. 212.—SUSPICION.

"Poor Rosa! to relieve the solitude of the villa she would have her chair taken on the terrace, where she would sit for hours listening to the music of a wand'ring minstrel. Even this pleasure was at last denied her. Donna Chiara, the old woman de Casa, took into her wise head that the minstrel was a lover in disguise."

An Italian garden is slightly indicated in the background, the scarf hanging on the basket at the lady's feet affords a point of brilliant colour.

Panel, oblong, $22\frac{1}{2} \times 16\frac{1}{2}$. Exhibited at R.A., 1848.

No. 213.—AN ITALIAN MOTHER TEACHING HER CHILD THE TARAN-TELLA.

The mother is dancing to the sound of a tambourine to show her little girl the steps, while some other figures are grouped around. Vines are trained on the trellis above; an orange tree is seen on the right; and in the background is the blue Mediterranean.

This picture has been many times repeated by the artist.

Panel, 22×17 , oblong. Signed, and dated 1842.

No. 214.—A NEAPOLITAN BOY DECORATING THE HEAD OF HIS INAMORATA AT THE FESTA OF THE MADONNA DEL ARCO.

The youth is twining a wreath of vine leaves in the dark hair of a young girl seated on the ground in the front of the picture. A vine is trained on the tree to the left, and a tambourine rests against it. In the background is an olive tree, and beyond it is slightly indicated the procession of our Lady of the Arch entering a church.

Panel, $10\frac{1}{2} \times 14$, upright. Exhibited at R.A., 1840.

No. 215.—THE FAVOURITE SHEPHERD.

"Fountain of S. Arcangelo, near Cava, South of Italy."

Four Italian peasants filling their water pitchers at a fountain have their attention attracted by a young shepherd passing with his dog in the background; beyond are buildings and cliffs.

Signed on the back, and dated 1837. On panel, $13\frac{7}{8} \times 9\frac{7}{8}$, upright.

JAMES WARD, R.A.,

Was born in Thames Street, London, in 1769, and apprenticed as an engraver. He afterwards took to animal painting, in which he has attained great eminence. Some of his pictures are like Morland in manner, but his study of anatomy under Brooks gave him power to realize works of a much higher character. He was elected an associate of the Academy in 1807, and a full member in 1811.

No. 216.—DONKEY AND PIGS.

A donkey feeding from a wheelbarrow. Two pigs are stretched on a heap of straw on the right.

On canvas, $9 \times 6\frac{1}{2}$. Signed J. Ward.

No. 217.—PIGS.

A large sow stretched at full length on the foreground; two other pigs seen in the background.

On canvas, $15\frac{1}{2} \times 9\frac{1}{2}$, oblong. Signed J. Ward, 1813.

No. 218.—A CHINESE SOW.

A large sow is rooting in the straw outside the sty.

On panel, $11 \times 8\frac{3}{8}$, oblong.

THOMAS WEBSTER, R.A.,

Was born in Ranelagh Street, Pimlico, London, in 1800, and was originally intended for the musical profession, which fortunately, however, he exchanged for art, entering as a student at the R.A. in 1820. The character of the studies there at first directed him, as it does most young students, towards historical subjects, but he early proved the original bent of his genius for portraying the humours and games of children; a field of art which he has rendered peculiarly his own, and maintained against all rivals. He was elected A.R.A. in 1840, and R.A. 1846.

No. 219.—SICKNESS AND HEALTH.

A young invalid has been brought out in her chair in front of the cottage door, while her sisters, in all the happiness of health, dance to the music of an Italian organ-man. The boy, who has been reading aloud, looking up from his book, considers himself disturbed by its noise.

On panel, 32 × 20, oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1843, painted for Mr. Sheepshanks. Signed, and dated 1843.

No. 220.—GOING TO THE FAIR.

An elderly man is pulled by his grandchildren to the cottage door to induce him to come to the fair, the booths of which are seen in the distance, while a little one struts in front astride on his stick. In the centre is a boy coaxing his grandmama for money, while behind, a man looking at his watch, evidently thinks that the toilet of the young women, one of whom is seen coming down stairs, has been long in completion. Some accessories are introduced in front; a wooden stool, bowl, pitcher, &c.

This picture with its companion were painted for Mr. Flood.

Panel, oblong, 30 × 22. Exhibited at B. I., 1838. Signed, and dated 1837.

No. 221.—RETURNING FROM THE FAIR.

The same group as before, with the addition in the background of a young man, who has escorted home the younger woman; the purchases are now being exhibited, and the old man brings up the rear, leading the weary child, and carrying its toy-horse. The father of the youngsters is filling a snuff-box, his contribution from the fair, for the grandmother of his children.

Exhibited at B. I., 1838. On panel, 30 × 22. Signed, and dated 1837.

No. 222.—A VILLAGE CHOIR.

A group of village singers and musicians in the gallery of a country church. The leader occupies the centre of the picture, and young choristers are at either side of him. The discrimination of the various voices by the expression is extremely well rendered. Painted for Mr. Sheepshanks.

Panel, 36×24 , oblong. Exhibited at R.A., 1847.

Chalk studies for several of the heads in this picture will be found amongst the collection of Drawings, Nos. 92 and 207—211.

No. 223.—CONTRARY WINDS.

The interior of a cottage in which sits an old woman knitting, while four children are gathered round a tub of water, on which they have set a piece of wood with a paper sail, and are puffing, with eager rivalry, to urge their ship to the opposite coasts of the washing tub. The cat is quietly dozing near the hearth, and a hat, shuttlecock, &c. are on the floor, beside the knife and chips which indicate the shipbuilding just accomplished.

Panel, $22\frac{1}{2} \times 14\frac{3}{4}$, oblong. Signed, and dated 1843.

No. 224.—READING THE SCRIPTURES.—AN INTERIOR.

A little child sitting on a low stool beside an old matron is reading to her the Bible. Several accessories are introduced in various parts of the room.

Panel, 14×16 , upright. Signed.

SIR DAVID WILKIE, R.A.,

Was the son of a Scottish clergyman, and born in Fifeshire, Nov. 18, 1785. He was educated in art in the Trustees Academy, at Edinburgh, until he removed to London in 1806, and became a student in the Royal Academy. His subjects from familiar life soon attracted the attention of the public. He was elected an associate in 1809, and a full member in 1811. In 1825 he travelled on the Continent, and on his return gradually changed his style. He was appointed Sergeant Painter to the King on the death of Lawrence in 1830, and painted several royal portraits; he was knighted in 1836, and in 1840 set out to visit and study in the Holy Land and various parts of the East. He died at sea on his way home, on 1st June 1841, in the 56th year of his age.

No. 225.—THE BROKEN JAR.

The subject from "Coxe's Social Day." An old gentleman, to whom the "haunted room" has been assigned for the night, discovers a wire intended to frighten him. He connects it with a precious china jar on the chimney piece,—thus turning the tables on his tormenters, who, startled by the consequent crash, are seen rushing into the room with lights.

On panel, $6\frac{1}{2} \times 7\frac{3}{4}$, upright. Exhibited at R.A., 1816.

No. 226.—THE REFUSAL.

"Duncan fleech'd and Duncan pray'd,
 Ha! ha! the wooing o'it;
 Meg was deaf as Ailsa Craig,
 Ha! ha! the wooing o'it;
 * * * * *
 "Shall I like a fool, quoth he,
 For a haughty hizzie dee;
 She may gae to—France for me,
 Ha! ha! the wooing o'it."

Burns' Song of Duncan Gray.

Meg is seated on the right of the picture, her mother beside, and her father behind her, seem to persuade her to listen to Duncan's addresses. He is seated near, but apart from her, and seems to regard her obduracy with a look of anger and irritation. Through the chink of a door on the right, others are peeping in and enjoying the sport. This picture was in a most dilapidated state from the use of asphaltum, but it has been repaired by Mr. Bentley.

On panel, $21\frac{1}{2} \times 25\frac{3}{4}$, upright. Exhibited at R.A., 1814.

No. 227.—SKETCH OF A BOOK CASE FOR "THE LETTER OF INTRODUCTION."

On panel, $11\frac{3}{4} \times 15$.

No. 228.—THE ERRAND BOY.

A boy on a white horse, receiving a message at a cottage door.

On panel, $11\frac{3}{4} \times 8$. Signed, D. Wilkie, 1820; but understood to be a repetition by another artist.

No. 229.—A HEAD AND TWO HANDS.

Sketches.

On canvas, 6×6 . Signed, D. Wilkie, 1806.

No. 230.—THE DAUGHTERS OF SIR WALTER SCOTT.

The ladies are sketched as two barefooted country maidens.

On panel, 5×11 , upright. Signed, D. Wilkie, 1817.

No. 231.—SKETCH OF A HEAD FOR "THE RABBIT ON THE WALL."

This head, together with a profile head also, are rapidly painted over a sketch of an interior, which shows beneath them.

On millboard, $5\frac{1}{2} \times 6$, upright. Signed D. Wilkie, 1806.

No. 232.—LANDSCAPE.

A small sketch of a party of gipsies, with two donkeys and a dog.

On panel, 8×11 , oblong.

WILLIAM FREDERICK WITHERINGTON, R.A.,

Was born in 1786, and studied his art in the schools of the Royal Academy, where he entered as a student in 1805. In 1830 he was elected an Associate, and in 1840 a full member of that body.

No. 233.—THE HOP GARDEN.

A young girl is dressing the bonnet of a sister with a garland of hop-bine, while a lad seated on a basket looks on with much pleasure at the effect of the head-dress. In the background is seen a hop-bin, and figures picking hops into it.

On panel, $14 \times 17\frac{1}{2}$, upright. Signed, and dated 1834. Exhibited at B. I., 1835.

THE WHOLE OF THE PAINTINGS IN OIL FROM 1 TO 233 INCLUSIVE ARE THE GIFT OF JOHN SHEEPHANKS, ESQ., TO THE NATION.

JAMES BARRY, R.A.,

Was born at Cork, Oct. 11, 1741. After some study of his profession in Dublin he came to London in his 23rd year, and was introduced by Burke to the Society of the Painters here. By the aid of Burke, Barry shortly afterwards proceeded to Italy, where he remained five years, and where the picture of Adam and Eve was partly painted, but finished in London. His series of works on the Progress of Human Culture, in the great rooms of the Society of Arts in the Adelphi, should be visited by all interested in the history of art in this country. Barry was elected Professor of Painting in the R.A. in 1782, and died 22nd Feb. 1806.

No. 234.—ADAM AND EVE.

Eve, having plucked the apple from the tree of knowledge, confesses her deed to Adam, and urges him to partake.

On canvas, size 5 feet \times $6\frac{1}{2}$.

This fine work, by Barry, is lent for exhibition at South Kensington by the Society of Arts in the Adelphi, to whom it was presented in 1836 by Richard Horsman Solly, Esq.

COLLECTION
OF
WATER-COLOUR PAINTINGS, DRAWINGS, ETCHINGS, ETC.,
PARTLY THE GIFT
OF
MR. J. SHEEPSHANKS,
ADDED TO BY OTHER DONATIONS, BY PURCHASE,
ETC.

Those works given by Mr. Sheepshanks are marked in the catalogue with the initial J. S. ; a series of etchings given by the Etching Club are in the same manner indicated by the letters E. C. ; the donors in other cases are specifically named. Reference to the Catalogue should be made in the alphabetical order of the artists' names.

Water-colour Paintings.

By private liberality, aided by Government, an attempt has been made to illustrate the commencement and growth of water-colour painting in Great Britain, some few specimens having been purchased of the works of the early water-colour painters, whose names are mentioned in the introduction to this catalogue (p. 27). This has rendered it desirable to enlarge a little on the history of water-colour painting, since the present, however small and incomplete, is the first attempt, to represent this peculiarly British art in any permanent public collection.

The practice of water-colour painting in England prior to the commencement of the present century was of two kinds,—first, TEMPERA PAINTING, wherein the pigments were either opaque in themselves or mixed with white in order to render them so ; and secondly, TINTED DRAWINGS, in which the whole of the intended picture was first laid in with a uniform grey tint, and then transparent colours washed over the ground thus prepared, in order to give the effect and colour of nature: in this, as in our present mode of water-colour painting, the luminousness of the work is greatly dependent on the white paper over which the transparent colours are laid.

The first mode, or tempera painting, may be said to have been derived from the ancient practice of missal painting, wherein the colours, mixed with white, and tempered with gum to make them cohere, and adhere to the paper, were uniformly opaque: thus the paper forming the ground of the picture contributed but little to the effect produced.* Tempera painting, as suitable to large works, and simple in its mode of execution, has always been much used in scene painting, and in the decoration of walls; and so it still continues to be both in England and on the continent. The Beech Tree (No. 383), by Paul Sandby, is a specimen of tempera painting, the only one purely in this manner in the present collection.

But the art more generally practised at the time referred to was of the second kind, wherein the drawing, sometimes outlined with a reed or other pen, was completed in light and dark in a grey preparation, and afterwards enriched by transparent colours. The works, No. 381, by John Varley, No. 384, by Payne, No. 344 and 345, by S. Prout, and No. 385, by Cozens, will sufficiently illustrate this process, while the use of the pen is seen in No. 350, by W. Hunt, and also in No. 345, by S. Prout, whose later works show such an effective use of the pen in connexion with a more advanced state of the art. Although the colours laid on over the tinted preparation have undoubtedly faded in some of the works referred to, they still serve to show the poverty and weakness out of which the present school of water-colour arose.

But the art, directed towards scene-painting by M. A. Rooker and others, practised for antiquarian purposes by Hearne, and which, even in the hands of Payne and Paul Sandby, was little more than the handmaid of topography, received about the commencement of this century an entirely new impulse from the studies of Turner and Girtin. While the art previously had amounted to little more than the correct delineation of ruins, country seats, castles, and towns, these two young men, studying nature for themselves, not as to form alone, but with an eye to truth of local colour, keeping, and the various effects of light and distance, early began to disuse the old practice of laying in the whole in grey, and tinting and enriching this prepared ground with transparent hues, as one would colour a print; instead of which they proceeded much as in oil-painting, the various objects being laid in with their true colour, and each shadowed with the proper individual tints for that purpose. Power, brilliancy, and truth was the result, and from being classed merely as drawings, works of this kind began to take rank as water-colour paintings.

* The beauty and delicacy of execution arrived at by the illuminators may be studied in other rooms of the museum.

Water-colour painting, as thus practised, has an innate brilliancy arising from the transparency of the colours and the pure white ground beneath them. This constitutes much of its peculiar excellence, subjoined to a delicacy and refinement of execution and gradation of tint, which is arrived at with ease in water-colour painting, but is only achieved after much training, and is the result of extreme skill, in the painter in oil.

Contrasted with the richness and depth of oil paintings, however, those in the simpler medium are apt to appear to disadvantage, and to have an air of poverty and thinness. Thus it was soon felt by those who practised water-colour painting that their works, in the only exhibition then open for their display—the Royal Academy—had not fair play.

Several members of the new profession, among whom may be named Glover, Hills, Payne, J. Varley, and Wells, met at the rooms of Mr. Shelley, a miniature painter of some celebrity; and receiving, at subsequent meetings, the adhesion of other members of the profession, the plan of a society was framed, and arrangements made for an exhibition, to consist wholly of water-colour paintings, and exclusively of the works of members of the society.

The first exhibition of "The Society of Painters in Water Colours," was opened to the public on the 22nd of April 1805, at the rooms built by Vandergutch, the engraver, in Lower Brook Street, Grosvenor Square. After a time their exhibitions were removed to Bond Street, and again to Spring Gardens, and finally, on the changes made in that neighbourhood, under the direction of Nash, the architect, to the rooms in Pall Mall East, where the annual exhibition continues to be held. It may be well here to give a list of the original members (some still holding high rank in public estimation), since, on the formation of a more complete collection, it should, if possible, include works representing the founders of this first society. These were :—

G. Barrett.	R. Hills.	S. Rigaud.
J. Cristall.	J. Holworthy.	S. Shelley.
W. J. Gilpin.	J. C. Nattes.	J. Varley.
J. Glover.	F. Nicholson.	C. Varley.
W. Havell.	W. H. Pyne.	W. F. Wells.

It will be observed that the names of the two artists whose works had contributed so largely to the change and improvement of water colour painting, are not in the list of the founders of the new society; but poor Girtin was already dead, and Turner, elected in 1802 a member of the Royal Academy, was bound by its rules to contribute to the annual exhibitions of that body. Moreover, his greatest efforts at this time were to achieve success in oil painting, by the practice of which branch of the art he hoped to establish his reputation.

The growth of the art, after the foundation of the new society and the opening of their separate exhibition, was rapid and steady, and improvements in execution were continuous. The present collection contains only one work by the great master Turner, (No. 88, Hornby Castle,) but this is in his best time, and deserves the most careful study. It will serve not only to illustrate Turner's extreme finesse of execution, but the various expedients he adopted to secure effects; such as the washing down of broken tints to obtain variety in the distance with proper air tints and gradations; the abrasion of the paper, and cutting off the surface for sharp and sunny glitters of light; and the removal of lights in other parts by wiping out: but it is also a masterpiece of knowledge of nature and the effects of nature, only to be arrived at after deep and continuous study; a knowledge without which the utmost skill in executive means fails to interest us. Another picture (No. 341, by W. Hunt,) will also serve to illustrate the like skill in the adaptation of varied means of execution, and is in its way scarcely less worthy of examination than that by Turner; it may be compared with a much earlier work, No. 350, by the same master, when the reed pen and the tinted preparation were still parts of the methods employed.

The art of water colour painting within the last 25 years has advanced still further, and sought new means of effect. A partial union has taken place of the transparent and the opaque methods, the use of body colours having been resorted to, in many cases, in order to give crispness and solidity; sometimes, it may be feared, with a loss of that brilliancy which is so admirable a quality of the art.

With the extension of water colour painting, and the increase of professors of the art, arose the necessity for a new exhibition, and in the year 1832 a new society was formed, called "The New Society of Painters in Water Colours." They adopted the same principle as the older society, of exhibiting only the works of members, and their first exhibition took place at No. 16, Old Bond Street in the spring of that year. Both societies contain many artists of distinguished talent, and whose works are highly attractive to the public; but the exclusive principle being adopted in both, all young candidates for their membership have still for a time to struggle with the difficulties of their predecessors, and to make their way to public estimation by exhibiting their works in contact with the stronger and more forcible efforts of the painters in oil.

GEORGE BARRETT.

One of the original members of the Society of Painters in Water Colours, and an artist of great merit, was the son of George Barrett, an early member of the Royal Academy. He died in 1842.

No. 154.—THE MARKET-GARDEN.

A sketch on the spot of a suburban market garden.

Water colour, $9\frac{1}{4} \times 6\frac{1}{4}$ oblong.

R. BRANDARD (see p. 33).

No. 1.—ROCKS AT HASTINGS. J. S.

A vignette sketch, looking from the east cliff.

Water colour, upright, $9 \times 6\frac{1}{2}$.

C. BROCKY.

No. 2.—STUDY OF A FEMALE HEAD. J. S.

Life size, on grey paper, coloured crayon. Upright, $20\frac{3}{4} \times 15\frac{3}{4}$.

No. 3.—STUDY OF A FEMALE HEAD. J. S.

Life size, on grey paper, coloured crayon, companion drawing to the above. Upright, $20\frac{3}{4} \times 15\frac{3}{4}$.

JNO. BURNETT (see p. 34).

No. 94.—A COTTAGE AT HASTINGS. J. S.

Water colour vignette sketch, dated 1809. $12\frac{7}{8} \times 8\frac{1}{4}$ oblong.

SIR AUGUSTUS W. CALLCOTT, R.A. (see p. 34).

No. 4.—EIGHT LANDSCAPE SKETCHES (PENCIL). J. S.

1. River scene with a bridge in the mid-distance. $3\frac{1}{4} \times 2\frac{1}{4}$.
 2. River scene, with hay barge. $6\frac{1}{4} \times 3\frac{7}{8}$.
 3. River scene, with barges in the foreground. 3×2 .
 4. } River Scene, a rocky promontory, with ruined castle. Oblong,
 8. } $4\frac{3}{8} \times 2\frac{7}{8}$.
 5. }
 6. River scene, with barges. Oblong, $2\frac{3}{4} \times 2$.
 7. Coast scenery. Brigs lying off shore. Oblong, $7\frac{1}{4} \times 4\frac{1}{8}$.
 8. Dutch barge unloading. Oblong, $2\frac{3}{4} \times 2\frac{1}{4}$.
- These eight sketches are trial compositions for pictures.

No. 6.—COAST SCENE.—A FISHING SMACK LYING TO. J. S.

Sketch on grey paper in India ink and white chalk, the forms afterwards lined in with bistre.

Oblong, $21\frac{1}{2} \times 15\frac{1}{8}$.

No. 7.—ROCKS AND SEA.—ISLE OF WIGHT. J. S.

A sketch on dark brown paper, in black and white chalk, with water colour and opaque white over the chalk.

Oblong, $19\frac{5}{8} \times 14\frac{3}{4}$.

No. 8.—GREENWICH HOSPITAL, LOOKING TOWARDS LONDON. J. S.

Drawing in India ink, the foreground penned in.

This drawing is mounted with one by Edward Webb, No. 91.

No. 9.—RIVER SCENE WITH BRIDGE AND CATHEDRAL. J. S.

Study in Indian ink on white paper, the forms penned in with brown.

Oblong, $21\frac{1}{2} \times 14$.

MRS. W. CARPENTER (see p. 36).

No. 95.—A STUDY FROM NATURE. J. S.

Water colour sketch, $9 \times 6\frac{1}{2}$ oblong.

LUKE CLENNELL.

Was born at Ulgham, near Morpeth, in 1781, and apprenticed to Bewick, the wood engraver, being chiefly employed in making drawings on the block. He also painted in oil and water colours, and won the prize offered by the British Institution for the best sketch of "The decisive Charge of the Life Guards at Waterloo." He died, in 1840, after a prolonged illness.

No. 342.—THE PRESS-GANG.

Four sailors are dragging a fisherman from his cottage; the wife, children, and aged father are endeavouring to retain him; the captain orders the prisoner to the boat.

Sketch in sepia, $17\frac{3}{8} \times 11\frac{1}{2}$ oblong.

WILLIAM COLLINS, R.A. (see p. 37).

No. 12.—FOUR SKETCHES IN WATER COLOURS—mounted together. J. S.

1. On a river, with a church in the distance. Oblong, $5\frac{3}{8} \times 3\frac{1}{2}$.
 2. A heath scene. Oblong, $5\frac{1}{2} \times 3\frac{1}{2}$.
 3. Cliffs from the seashore. Oblong, $6 \times 3\frac{3}{8}$.
 4. Arable land, with a windmill on a distant hill. Oblong, $6 \times 3\frac{1}{4}$.
-

No. 13.—THE RIVER SIDE. J. S.

Sketch of a boathouse and landing place. Water colour.

Upright, $7\frac{1}{2} \times 9\frac{3}{8}$.

No. 14.—A STREET IN NAPLES.—ST. ELMO CASTLE IN THE DISTANCE.
J. S.

Water-colour sketch. Upright, $6 \times 7\frac{7}{8}$.

EDWARD WM. COOKE, A.R.A. (see p. 40).

No. 15.—BRIGHTON SANDS.—FISHING BOAT ON SHORE. J. S.

Water colour, oblong, $8\frac{3}{4} \times 5\frac{7}{8}$. See Oil Paintings, No. 41.

No. 16.—SEA-GROYN AT HASTINGS. J. S.

Water colour, oblong, $10 \times 7\frac{1}{2}$.

No. 17.—LOBSTER POTS. J. S.

The sea-shore, with an iron pot steaming, over the edge of which hangs a boiled lobster. Two pots, properly weighted, and containing a living lobster form part of the group. Study for the oil painting No. 39.

Oblong, $12\frac{1}{2} \times 9$. Dated December 12th, 1835.

No. 18.—MENDING NETS. J. S.

A fisherman's shed on the sea-shore, containing lobster pots, floats, &c.; a dead porpoise hangs on the right hand. A study for the oil painting No. 40.

Oblong, $12\frac{3}{8} \times 9$.

No. 102.—WINDMILL, BLACKHEATH. J. S.

An out-of-doors sketch, in water colours. Another view of the preceding mill, looking towards Blackheath Park.

Oblong, $12\frac{1}{4} \times 8$.

No. 103.—WINDMILLS, BLACKHEATH.—MORNING. J. S.

Out-of-doors sketch, in water colours.

Oblong, $12 \times 7\frac{3}{4}$.

No. 104.—WINDMILLS, BLACKHEATH.—EVENING. J. S.

Out-of-doors sketch in water colours.

Oblong, 11×7 .

CHAS. W. COPE, R.A. (see p. 41).

No. 19.—A SLEEPING CHILD. J. S.

A study from the life, on light brown paper, in black chalk and vermilion. For a picture painted for the Marquis of Lansdowne.

Oblong, $14\frac{1}{8} \times 8\frac{3}{4}$.

No. 20.—PALPITATION. J. S.

Study for a female head in the Oil Painting No. 52.

On coloured paper, in black and white chalk. Upright.

No. 21.—STUDIES FOR THE PICTURE OF "COTTER'S SATURDAY NIGHT." J. S.

The head of the old man, the two hands, and child's hand, with a varied position for one of the hands.

On light tinted paper, in black and red chalk. Oblong, $11 \times 7\frac{3}{4}$.

No. 22.—STUDY FOR A CHILD'S HEAD IN THE SAME PICTURE. J. S.

From the life. Red and black chalk, with colour washed over the zinc white. Upright, $4\frac{5}{8} \times 4\frac{3}{8}$.

No. 23.—STUDY OF A KNEELING CHILD FOR THE PICTURE OF "THE PENITENT'S RETURN." J. S.

The child is kneeling beside the penitent mother, who has returned to her home and thrown herself at her father's feet.

In black and red chalk. Upright, 9×11 .

No. 24.—A STUDY OF HANDS. J. S.

Highly finished. Life size. In black and red chalk. Oblong, $12\frac{3}{4} \times 8\frac{5}{8}$.

No. 155.—FEMALE HANDS ON AN OPEN BOOK.

A study, life-size, for the picture of "The Sisters," painted for Mr. Watts, of Manchester.

On tinted paper, in black, white, and red chalk. Oblong, $14\frac{3}{4} \times 11\frac{3}{4}$.

No. 156.—CLASPED HANDS.

A study for the hands of Brabantio in the picture of "Othello relating his Adventures."

In black, white, and red chalk, on a distemper ground. Oblong, $12\frac{5}{8} \times 9\frac{1}{2}$. Signed and dated 1852.

No. 157.—STUDY OF A MONK'S HEAD.

A study, life-size, for one of the heads in the picture of "The Death of Cardinal Wolsey." Painted for H.R.H. Prince Albert. Not used in the picture.

On tinted paper, in black, white, and red chalk. Upright, $9 \times 12\frac{1}{2}$.

Nos. 158 and 159.—LIFE STUDIES OF A FEMALE FIGURE HOLDING A PITCHER.

Signed C. W. C., visitor in R.A., 1852.

On white paper, stippled in pen and brown. Upright.

No. 160.—NUDE STUDY OF A FEMALE HOLDING A PITCHER.

On dark grey paper, in charcoal. Signed. Upright, $25\frac{5}{8} \times 8\frac{7}{8}$.

No. 161.—A STUDY OF DRAPERY.

Made on the outline of the preceding figure. Both are studies for the picture of "A Cup of Cold Water," and illustrate the mode in which the study of drapery is carried out.

Dark grey paper, in charcoal and white chalk. Signed. Upright, $27 \times 11\frac{3}{8}$. (Mounted with the preceding.)

No. 162.—"THE FAINTING CHILD."

This study is for the child who needs the "cup of cold water given in Christ's name." Prepared for the same picture as the two preceding drawings.

Upright, $11 \times 17\frac{1}{2}$. Signed and dated "1844, Cup of Cold Water."

DAVID COX.

Born at Birmingham in 1793. He was an early member of the Society of Water Colours.

No. 163.—A STREET IN BEAUVAIS.

A portion of an ecclesiastical edifice is seen on the left of the picture, and several figures are introduced.

Water colour, upright, $6\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{3}{4}$.

No. 334.—THE BELATED TRAVELLER.

A group of trees throw a dark shadow over a road; a horseman is hurrying forward, followed by a dog.

Water colour, size $18\frac{1}{4} \times 11$, oblong. Signed "David Cox."

JOHN COZENS

Was the son of Alexander Cozens, a Russian by birth, who established himself in London as a landscape painter, about the year 1770. His son followed the same profession. His tinted water colour drawings display much poetry of composition. He died in 1799.

No. 385.—A LAKE SCENE.

Water colours, $21\frac{3}{8} \times 14\frac{1}{2}$, oblong.

An extensive lake with distant hills.

J. CROME, SEN. (see p. 43).No. 213.—NEAR MAGDALEN GATE, NORWICH.

Signed, J. C. Indian ink, on grey paper. Oblong, $7\frac{1}{4} \times 4\frac{1}{4}$. Presented by C. J. Robinson, Esq.

No. 214.—KING STREET, NORWICH.

Signed J. C. Indian ink, on grey paper, with white chalk. Oblong, $7\frac{1}{4} \times 4\frac{1}{4}$. Presented by C. J. Robinson, Esq.

P. DEWINT

Was for a long time a distinguished member of "The Society of Painters in Water Colours." It is understood that he was a native of Lincoln, and born in 1783. He died in London, 30 June, 1849.

No. 328.—A LANDSCAPE WITH CATTLE.

A sluggish stream, in the foreground two fishermen in a punt, a group of cattle in the mid distance.

Water colours, $13\frac{3}{8} \times 9\frac{5}{8}$, oblong.

WILLIAM DYCE, R.A.,

Was born in Aberdeen in 1806, and educated at the University of that city, where he took a degree of M.A. at the age of 16. Shortly afterwards he visited Italy, and commenced his artistic studies with the intention of devoting himself to historical painting. On his return from Italy in 1830 he went to reside in Edinburgh, where he remained, practising portrait painting chiefly, until 1838, when he came to London on being appointed superintendent and secretary to the then recently established Government School of Design at Somerset House. He resigned the direction of those Schools in 1843, and since that time has devoted himself exclusively to historic art, and chiefly to works in fresco. He is an honorary member of the Royal Scottish Academy, of which he was elected an Associate in 1835. He was elected Associate of the Royal Academy in 1844, Academician in 1848.

No. 164.—A STUDY OF COMPOSITION.

In chalk, on tinted paper, $7\frac{1}{4} \times 5\frac{5}{8}$, shaped for a Gothic arch, being the upper compartment of the fresco in the House of Lords, representing "The Baptism of Ethelbert." Signed W. D.

No. 164.*—ENLARGED STUDY.

From one of the figures in the above fresco.

Chalk, tinted paper. Upright, $7\frac{1}{4} \times 10$. Signed W. D.

No. 166.—A FEMALE HEAD, LIFE SIZE.

From the cartoon of "Neptune giving to Britannia the Empire of the Sea." Painted in fresco at Osborne for Her Majesty.

Charcoal. Signed W. D. Upright, $12\frac{1}{4} \times 8\frac{3}{4}$.

No. 167.—STUDY OF COMPOSITION.

Sketch for a picture of the Consecration of Archbishop Parker.

Red chalk, on white paper. Signed, W. D. Oblong $8\frac{1}{2} \times 6\frac{1}{4}$.

No. 168.—"DESIGN."

Pen and ink study of a draped female for the cover of the drawing book prepared by Mr. Dyce for the Government Schools of Design.

Signed, W. D. $6\frac{3}{8} \times 8\frac{7}{8}$.

No. 172.—PEN SKETCHES OF FEMALE FIGURES.

Studies for a figure in "The Temptation of Sir Perceval," House of Lords.

White paper. Signed, W. D. Upright, $10\frac{1}{2} \times 9$.

No. 173.—STUDY OF AN INDIAN FROM THE LIFE.

Chalk and zinc white, on tinted paper. Signed, W. D., February 1844. Upright, $22\frac{3}{8} \times 15\frac{1}{4}$.

No. 174.—GLENLAER, DUMFRIESSHIRE.

Water colour study. On the drawing, "Glenlaer, Dumfriesshire." W.D.

Oblong $7\frac{5}{8} \times 12\frac{3}{4}$.

THOMAS GIRTIN

Was born in London in 1773. He at first was the pupil of an artist, named Dayes, of whose works but little is known. Reverting early to the study of nature, he emancipated himself and the arts from the methods hitherto practised in water-colour painting. This had consisted merely in tinting over a previous grey preparation; but in the hands of Girtin and his contemporary, Turner, a new system was adopted, that gradually led, in the hands of the latter artist, to all the graces of colour and execution seen in works in this museum. Girtin himself unfortunately was early lost to art. He died in 1802.

No. 380.—A VIEW ON THE WHARF.

A rocky bank of a stream, the river flowing beneath the rocks; on the opposite bank is a spit of land on which a shepherd feeds some sheep. Water colour, $24\frac{1}{4} \times 18\frac{1}{2}$, horizontal.

W. HAVELL.

Was one of the original members of the Water Colour Society; spent many years of his life in India. He painted both in oil and water colours, and died in 1857.

No. 382.—WINDSOR ON THE THAMES.

The castle is partly hidden from view by a group of trees; a barge in the foreground is being hauled through a lock.

Size, 2 ft. $9\frac{7}{8}$ w. \times 2 ft. $0\frac{5}{8}$ h.

JOHN ROGERS HERBERT, R.A.,

Was born at Maldon, in Essex, 23 January 1810 ; he came to London in his 16th year, and was admitted a student of the Royal Academy. His first labours in art were portraits and designs for illustrations of books, leading him gradually to more important works. He was for some time a head-master in the School of Design at Somerset House, was selected to execute one of the frescoes in the vestibule of the Houses of Parliament, and subsequently had entrusted to him a series of subjects illustrating "Judgment," for the Peers' robing-room. He was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy in 1841, and a full member in 1848.

No. 175.—TWO FEMALE HEADS.

Studies for the head of Cordelia in the fresco in the House of Lords. One is very slight, in chalk, the other much more completed, in pencil. Signed, J. R. Herbert, "Study for Cordelia." Oblong, $9\frac{1}{2} \times 6$.

No. 176.—STUDY FOR THE HAND OF KING LEAR.

On tinted paper, in black, white, and red chalk. Signed, J. R. Herbert, "Study for the Hands of Lear." Oblong, $8\frac{1}{4} \times 6\frac{3}{8}$.

No. 177.—STUDY OF DRAPERY.

On tinted paper, in black and white chalk. Signed, J. R. Herbert, "Study for Cordelia." Upright, $20\frac{7}{8} \times 14\frac{1}{4}$.

No. 178.—STUDY FOR KING LEAR.

Shewing only the drapery of the lower portion of the figure. On tinted paper, in black and white chalk. Signed, J. R. Herbert, "Study for Lear." Upright, $18\frac{3}{4} \times 13\frac{3}{8}$.

No. 179.—STUDY FOR KING LEAR.

Black and white chalk. Signed, J. R. Herbert, "Study for Lear." Upright, $13\frac{3}{4} \times 17$.

These five drawings are for the fresco of Lear and Cordelia in the vestibule of the Houses of Parliament, and illustrate the mode of study pursued in preparing the cartoon. The changes in Nos. 178 and 179 serve to show that changes are often necessary to make the lines of the drapery suit the composition. No 179, although pleasant in itself as to line, needed to be altered to No. 178 to compose with the other figures.

No. 182.—STUDY OF A HEAD.

Chalk, $9\frac{1}{4} \times 12$ in., oblong. Study of a head, in the fresco of "Moses," about to be painted in the Houses of Parliament.

No. 183.—THE WOMAN OF SAMARIA AT THE WELL.

Study for the picture of Christ and the Woman of Samaria.

Black and white chalk, on tinted paper. On the drawing, "Study for the Woman of Samaria." Upright, $9\frac{1}{4} \times 8\frac{1}{8}$.

No. 184.—TWO STUDIES FOR OUR LORD.

For the same picture.

Signed J. R. Herbert, "Study for our Lord at the Well." Black chalk, on tinted paper. Oblong, $9\frac{3}{8} \times 12\frac{5}{8}$.

JAMES HOLLAND (see p. 45).

18 SKETCHES IN WATER COLOURS OF SCENES IN PORTUGAL.

No. 29.—CONVENT DE SERRA. J. S.

Foreground slightly sketched in.

Oblong, $17 \times 11\frac{3}{4}$. Dated Sept. 1, 1837.

No. 30.—VILLA DE CONDE.

Water colours, 17 in. $\times 11\frac{3}{4}$, oblong.

A mill dam and under-shot mill under the walls of a chateau.

No. 32.—MOORISH PALACE, CINTRA. J. S.

The foreground only sketched in pencil. On the drawing: "July 9, 1837. Moorish Palace, Cintra, from the window of Madame de Belini's Hotel."

Oblong, $17 \times 11\frac{3}{4}$.

No. 35.—TORRES VEDRAS. J. S.

The dark grey hills of these celebrated lines are completed, while the foreground is merely sketched in pencil.

Oblong, 17×12 . Dated "July 28, 4 o'clock morning."

No. 37.—S. FRANCISCO. J. S.

The ruin completed; the foreground merely sketched in.

Oblong, $17 \times 11\frac{3}{4}$. Dated July 1, 1837.

No. 44.—PART OF THE OLD TREASURY, LISBON. J. S.

The building is described as "not repaired since the earthquake."

Upright, $13\frac{3}{4} \times 10\frac{1}{8}$. Dated, June 22.

No. 47.—NIMWEGEN. J. S.

A slight drawing in water colour.

Oblong, $10\frac{1}{8} \times 6\frac{1}{4}$.

WILLIAM HUNT.

No. 340.—A COAST GUARDSMAN.

In full equipment, armed with cutlass, pistol, musket, &c.

Water colour drawing. Upright, $14 \times 9\frac{1}{2}$.

No. 341.—BOY AND GOAT.

A boy leaning against a fragment of a wall, holds a goat by a cord.
Signed and dated 1836.

Water colour. Oblong, $16 \times 12\frac{1}{4}$.

No. 350.—THE COTTAGE DOOR.

Water colours, $13\frac{7}{8} \times 10\frac{5}{8}$, upright.

A group of cottage or farm buildings with a woman at a low door looking after some fowls. An early drawing by the master.

SIR EDWIN LANDSEER, R.A. (see p. 47).

Nos. 48 to 56.—NINE EARLY DRAWINGS, MOUNTED TOGETHER. J. S.No. 48.—A HOUND. J. S.

In pencil; from a copy. Drawn at five years of age.

Oblong, $4\frac{3}{8} \times 4\frac{1}{4}$.

No. 49.—A CALF. J. S.

In pencil. On this drawing is written in pencil, "Drawn by Edwin Landseer when he was first breeched.—J. P."

Upright, $4\frac{1}{2} \times 3\frac{1}{2}$.

No. 50.—HEAD OF A POINTER. J. S.

Water colour. Marked in pencil, "10 ys."

Upright, $3\frac{1}{2} \times 3\frac{7}{8}$.

No. 51.—A HORSE'S HEAD. J. S.

The bridle is removed, and the horse is feeding from a nose-bag. This is evidently from nature. Marked in pencil, "6 or 7."

Pencil. Oblong, $3\frac{7}{8} \times 3\frac{1}{2}$.

No. 52.—HEAD OF A BULL. J. S.

A pencil drawing strongly characteristic of the animal. In ink, on the drawing, "Drawn from nature by Edwin Landseer, June, 1810. Aged 8 years and 2 months.—J. P."

$4\frac{3}{4} \times 4\frac{3}{4}$.

No. 53.—PARROT ON A PERCH. J. S.

Pencil drawing, apparently from nature. Age, marked in pencil, 9.
 $3\frac{3}{4} \times 3$.

No. 54.—HEAD OF A YOUNG ASS. J. S.

Probably from nature. Marked in ink "Aged 8." In pencil.
 "June 5, 1810, aged 9."
 Upright, $2\frac{1}{8} \times 2\frac{7}{8}$.

No. 55.—A GROUP OF A SOW AND PIGS. J. S.

Pencil drawing, evidently from nature. On it is written in pencil, in the same hand as the last, "Drawn by E. Landseer, June 5, 1810."
 Oblong, $6\frac{1}{8} \times 2\frac{5}{8}$.

No. 56.—A CAT'S HEAD. J. S.

Pencil drawing, evidently from nature. Age marked in pencil (10).
 Upright, $27 \times 2\frac{1}{2}$.

No. 57.—STAGS' HEADS AND DOG. J. S.

Two red deers' heads disposed on a cloth, against which a hound leans his head.

On grey paper, in black and white and red chalk, oblong, 20×14 .

No. 114.—SKETCHES OF SIR WALTER AND LADY SCOTT. J. S.

Profile and three-quarters face of Sir Walter Scott, and profile and whole length of Lady Scott. Signed, E. L.

Pen and ink. Upright, $6\frac{3}{4} \times 8\frac{3}{4}$.

No. 115.—MONKEYS. J. S.

Rapid sketches in pen and ink; in the corner is seen a slight profile of Sir Walter Scott.

Upright, $6\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{1}{8}$.

CHARLES R. LESLIE, R.A. (see p. 54).

No. 58.—DON QUIXOTE DEFYING THE SHOWMAN'S LION. J. S.

Sketch made at an evening meeting of the Sketching Society, to illustrate the word "Peril." (Vide p. 21.)

Don Quixote watches the opening of the cage in a prepared attitude, while the drowsy lion shows little inclination for a combat.

Tinted sketch, oblong, $16\frac{3}{8} \times 12$.

No. 59.—SCENE FROM "PEREGRINE PICKLE." J. S.

This sketch also is one produced at the evening meetings of the Sketching Society.

Tinted paper, $16\frac{3}{8} \times 12$ oblong.

No. 198.—ARRANGING THE HEAD-DRESS. J. S.

Study of a female. Pen and ink. Upright, $79\frac{1}{2}$.

No. 199.—THE GUITAR. J. S.

Pen and ink study. Oblong, $7\frac{1}{4} \times 4\frac{1}{2}$.

WILLIAM MULREADY, R.A. (see p. 60).

No. 60.—STUDY FOR A PICTURE OF "PUNCH." J. S.

The picture was painted in 1812. Exhibited at R.A., 1813, and there purchased by Sir J. Swinburne, Bart. This study is considerably worked up, on brown paper, in black and white chalk. See Paintings No. 159.

Oblong, $21\frac{3}{4} \times 15\frac{3}{8}$.

No. 62.—STUDY OF A GIRL AND CHILD FOR THE PICTURE OF "THE CANNON." J. S.

Which was painted and exhibited at R.A. in 1827, when it was purchased by Sir R. Peel. This study is from nature, carefully completed.

On brown paper, in black chalk. Upright, $17\frac{3}{8} \times 9$.

No. 63.—THE PROFILE ON THE WALL. J. S.

This is the only sketch made for the picture of the origin of a painter which was painted and exhibited at R.A. in 1826.

Black and white chalk, on brown paper. Upright, $7\frac{5}{8} \times 6\frac{1}{4}$.

No. 64.—STUDY FROM THE LIFE. J. S.

For the picture of "Open your Mouth and Shut your Eyes," No. 143, painted in 1838. This drawing is dated August 1st, 1833.

Pen and ink, slightly tinted. $6\frac{5}{8} \times 6\frac{3}{8}$.

No. 65.—LANDSCAPE WITH CATTLE. J. S.

Pen and ink, tinted. Oblong, $2\frac{3}{4} \times 1\frac{3}{4}$.

No. 66.—PEN AND INK DRAWING. J. S.

From the neighbourhood of Blackheath Park, formerly the residence of Mr. Sheepshanks.

Oblong, $8\frac{3}{4} \times 7\frac{1}{4}$.

No. 67.—COTTAGES. J. S.

A study in pencil. Dated 1808.

Upright, $6\frac{1}{8} \times 8\frac{3}{8}$.

Nos. 68 & 69.—BOYS FISHING. J. S.

First thoughts for the picture with that title. Painted in 1813, and exhibited at R.A., 1814; the property of Sir J. Swinburne, Bart.

Oblong, $5\frac{1}{8} \times 3\frac{5}{8}$.

Nos. 70, 71, & 72.—STUDIES FOR THE PICTURE OF "THE BARBER'S SHOP." J. S.

Including the head of the principal figure, and varied positions of the hands. The picture was painted and exhibited in 1811, having been finished in three weeks. These studies are dated March 13.

No. 75.—A STUDY FOR THE PORTRAIT OF MR. SHEEPSHANKS. J. S.

This drawing in sepia, with the pen and brush, is pieced and re-touched in various parts, and the alterations seem embodied in No. 78.

No. 76.—SKETCH FOR THE FIGURE OF THE HOUSEKEEPER IN No. 78. J. S.

This figure is reversed in Nos. 75 and 78 to suit the arrangement of the room. Dated, August 11, 1832.

No. 77.—AN ORNAMENTED FIRE-PLACE. J. S.

This is a background for the sketches No. 75 and 78.

Pen and sepia. Upright, $7\frac{1}{8} \times 6$.

No. 78.—PORTRAIT OF MR. SHEEPSHANKS. J. S.

This may be said to form a cartoon for the picture No. 142, and varies, as may be seen, from No. 75. It is covered over with squaring lines in red chalk.

Pen and sepia, on coloured paper. Upright, $14\frac{1}{4} \times 17\frac{1}{8}$.

No. 200.—A COTTAGE. J. S.

Presented by Mr. Sheepshanks. This is probably a drawing made and used by Mr. M., in his early practice as a drawing master.

Pencil, on tinted paper. Oblong, $9\frac{1}{4} \times 7\frac{5}{8}$.

No. 212.—LESSONS AND PLAY.

On zinc. This is the only Drawing made by the Artist on this material. It was the title-page for "The Mother's Primer."

No. 1, $3\frac{3}{8}$ square; No. 2, $3\frac{3}{8} \times 1\frac{5}{8}$. Presented by H. Cole, Esq., C.B.

No. 419.—PORTRAIT OF THE REV. RICHARD SHEEPSHANKS, M.A.

In chalk, $10\frac{1}{4} \times 14$ in., upright.

Posthumous portrait of the brother of Mr. J. Sheepshanks.

FRANCIS NICHOLSON

Resided in the neighbourhood of York; he was one of the original members of the Society of Painters in Water Colours, and wrote a work on some new executive processes.

No. 421.—RHAIDR MAWR.

Water colours, size $30\frac{1}{4} \times 25\frac{1}{2}$ in.

A grand waterfall with distant mountain scenery.

PAYNE.No. 384.—A VIEW OF HAREWOOD HOUSE.

A large oak is on the left of the picture; on the right Harewood is seen in the distance. Size $14\frac{1}{8}$ w. \times 10 h.

AARON PENLEY.

This artist is a member of the new Society of Painters in Water Colours.

No. 337.—A MOORLAND SCENE.

Water-colour painting, size $20\frac{3}{4} \times 11\frac{1}{4}$.

A grey dark morning on the moors.

SAMUEL PROUT

Was born at Plymouth in 1783; was an early friend and associate of Haydon, but owes perhaps the direction of his art labours to a tour in Cornwall with Mr. John Britton. Prout arrived in London in 1805. In 1818, on a tour, partly for health, partly for improvement, he began his travels on the continent, where he remained for some years. From the effects of a sun-stroke in childhood, and the ill-effects of his exposure to weather in sketching, he was during his latter years a constant invalid, but continued to labour to the last. He died in 1852.

No. 344.—STONEHENGE.

Rain clearing off from behind the cromlech.

An early drawing by the Master. Water colour. Oblong, $18\frac{1}{4} \times 11\frac{1}{8}$.

No. 345.—BRIDGE OVER THE OUSE, NEAR YORK.

A bridge spanning a shallow stream; cottage and trees in the background.

Water colour drawing. Oblong, $9\frac{7}{8} \times 14\frac{5}{8}$.

RICHARD REDGRAVE, R.A. (see p. 66).No. 79.—TRING. J. S.

A study of the entrance gate, and part of a cottage, with foliage.

Date 1843. Water colour. Oblong, $15\frac{3}{4} \times 10\frac{3}{8}$.

No. 196.—THE CRUEL PARENT.

Study for the father in The Outcast. This figure is a study for the picture presented to the R.A. on being elected a member.

Black, white, and red chalk, on tinted paper. Presented by R. R. Upright, $21 \times 13\frac{1}{4}$.

GEORGE FENNELL ROBSON.No. 84.—CHARLTON, KENT. J. S.

View from a terrace, looking over London, with Scotch firs on the right.

Water colour. Upright, $9\frac{1}{4} \times 11\frac{1}{4}$.

PAUL SANDBY, R.A.,

Was born at Nottingham in 1725. He was elected an R.A. at the foundation of that institution in 1768, and was for many years chief drawing master at Woolwich. He was principally celebrated for the topographical correctness of his works; these were principally in water colours, and in the old method of working in that medium. He occasionally painted in oil, and the work in this collection is in distemper or body colours; that is, in colours used opaquely or with some opaque white used with them, so as to hide the ground of the work. He died in 1809.

No. 383.—AN ANCIENT BEECH TREE.

A large spreading beech; underneath are two rustics disputing about some fruit in a hat; river and hilly country in the distance. Signed and dated P. Sandby, 1794.

WILLIAM SIMSON (see p. 70).No. 85.—EEL POTS. J. S.

An out-of-door sketch of meadows, a stream crossed by a foot bridge near which lie some eel pots.

Water colour.

No. 86.—SCOTCH PEASANTS. J. S.

A study of a peasant girl and child.

Water colour. Upright $10 \times 14\frac{1}{2}$. Dated Oct. 7, 1842.

CLARKSON STANFIELD, R.A. (see p. 71).

No. 188.—DINANT ON THE MEUSE.

Water colour drawing, on tinted paper. Upright, $7\frac{1}{2} \times 10\frac{3}{4}$.

THOMAS STOTHARD, R.A. (see p. 73).

No. 189.—THE VICAR OF WAKEFIELD.

Circular drawing in Indian ink. Squared for engraving. Diameter, $7\frac{1}{2}$.

No. 190.—THE SICK BED.

Pen and ink and Indian ink; the corners have been at some time removed and restored. Oblong, $8\frac{1}{8} \times 6$.

HENRY J. TOWNSEND

Was born at Taunton, June 6, 1810, and educated for the medical profession; but after passing the requisite examinations, he turned aside to follow art. He was successful in obtaining one of the cartoon prizes, (vide No. 193,) and was for some time a head-master of the Government School of Design.

No. 191.—“THE LIONS ROARING AFTER THEIR PREY DO SEEK THEIR MEAT FROM GOD.”

The moon just rising, pierces with its rays a forest of palms; the lioness rising from her lair watches the night fire of some travellers seen amid the stems. Sketch for a picture.

Chalk, on tinted paper. Oblong, $12\frac{5}{8} \times 20$.

No. 194.—CROMWELL AND IRETON READING THE INTERCEPTED LETTER FROM CHARLES I.

“We ungirt the saddle and carried it into the stable, where we had been drinking; ripping up one of the skirts, we there discovered the letter.”

“In this letter the King, alluding to Cromwell and Ireton, observed that ‘when the proper time came he should furnish the rogues, not with a silken garter, but with a hempen cord.’”

Study for a picture exhibited at the R.A. in 1844. Pen and ink. Oblong, $12\frac{1}{2} \times 9\frac{3}{4}$.

JOSEPH MALLORD WILLIAM TURNER, R.A. (see p. 75).

No. 88.—HORNBY CASTLE, LANCASHIRE. J. S.

From Tatham Church. A highly finished drawing. The castle occupies the middle distance; on the left is a road leading to a bridge, which crosses the river, whose course is marked through the foliage along its banks; in the foreground are gipsies travelling along the road with a donkey; a cat laps up some milk that has been spilt, and a birch tree rises in the centre.

This was one of the drawings made for Messrs. Hurst & Robinson for the Yorkshire series, from whom it was purchased on the completion of the engraving.

Water colour. Oblong, $16\frac{1}{2} \times 11\frac{1}{2}$.

THOS. UWINS, R.A. (see p. 76).

No. 89.—MERCURY CONDUCTING PSYCHE TO OLYMPUS. J. S.

On tinted paper, in red and black chalk. Upright, $13\frac{7}{8} \times 10\frac{1}{8}$.
Dated 1849.

No. 90.—CUPID AND PSYCHE. J. S.

"Study for a picture painted for the Queen," 1845. The subject is from Apuleius, Cupid restoring Psyche to animation with a kiss.

Red and black chalk. Upright, $12\frac{7}{8} \times 16$.

JOHN VARLEY

Was born in London about 1777. He was one of the first of those who changed the character of water-colour art from tinted drawings to rank as paintings. His latter works have more of the character of "compositions" than transcripts from nature, and have often great richness and force from the mode of execution he adopted. He died in 1842.

No. 381.—CADER IDRIS, NORTH WALES.

An extensive view of the mountain, as seen from the Harlech road.

This is an early picture by the artist, painted when the practice of tinting over a grey preparation had not wholly been abandoned. The picture is somewhat faded, but represents the transition period of British water-colour art. Size, 3 ft. $5\frac{1}{8}$ in. w. \times 1 ft. $4\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.

EDWARD WEBB

Was born in London in 1805; was apprenticed to Mr. Pye, engraver; received instruction in art from Copley Fielding. He died in 1854.

No. 91.—THE FISH MARKET AT HASTINGS. J. S.

Sepia. Oblong, $7\frac{1}{4} \times 5\frac{1}{4}$, mounted with No. 8.

THOMAS WEBSTER.

No. 92.—THE LEADER OF THE VILLAGE CHOIR.

Chalk study, $12\frac{3}{8} \times 8\frac{3}{8}$.

A study for the picture of "The Village Choir;" in the collection of oil pictures.

SIR DAVID WILKIE, R.A. (see p. 79).

No. 93.—THE PEEP OF DAY BOY. J. S.

Study for the picture with that title in the Vernon Collection.

On tinted paper, in red and white chalk, with sepia. Oblong, $20\frac{1}{2} \times 13$.

No. 120.—DUNCAN GRAY. J. S.

This sketch would appear to be a memorandum of some casual group, which he has appropriated in the next drawing, No. 121.

Pencil, upright, $4 \times 3\frac{1}{8}$.

No. 121.—DUNCAN GRAY. J. S.

This sketch is on the back of a dinner invitation. It seems as if the casual pencil sketch, No. 120, was in this slight hint first moulded into the subject of the oil painting No. 226. All the figures are introduced but the one peeping into the room from the side door. The back ground also is very much more developed.

In ink, upright, $2\frac{3}{4} \times 4\frac{1}{8}$.

No. 122.—STUDY OF A HAND. J. S.

This is one of the hands of Duncan, sketched from the life. It is studied considerably larger than it is painted in the picture.

On grey paper, black and white chalk, upright, $4\frac{3}{4} \times 5\frac{1}{8}$.

No. 123.—STUDY OF FEMALE HANDS FOR THE SAME PICTURE. J. S.

Their composition and action are very expressive.

On grey paper, in black and white chalk.

No. 124.—SKETCHES OF HEADS AND HANDS. J. S.

On the back is written, "Blind Man's Buff. Dated, 1812."

On grey paper, in black and white chalk, oblong, $4\frac{3}{4} \times 5\frac{1}{8}$.

No. 195.—REAPERS. J. S.

A sketch in chalk, on coloured paper. Purchased from Mr. Graves. Signed, D. Wilkie. $5\frac{3}{4} \times 6\frac{1}{4}$.

LONDON:

Printed by GEORGE E. EYRE and WILLIAM SPOTTISWOODE,
Printers to the Queen's most Excellent Majesty.
For Her Majesty's Stationery Office.